THE BIG PICTURE

ARE YOU KIDDING?

Despite their bulk, Bigfoots are surprisingly nimble and are able to dart across rural roads safely. Researchers say that since 1971, only two of the creatures are known to have become 'road kill.'

By MIKE FOSTER

DELIGHTED researchers say they've made an astounding discovery in the Colorado wilderness: The world's only known two-headed Bigfoot!

The lumbering, 8-foot-tall creature was photographed by a team of cryptozoologists in a clearing on the edge of Rocky Mountain National Park.

"It's impossible to overstate the rarity of this creature," declares Dr. Adam Fegland, leader of the eight-man expedition. "This would be like finding an albino Nessie or a Northern

CAUGHT!

DOUBLE TROUBLE: First photo of ultra-rare two-headed Bigfoot demonstrates that the conjoined twins have very different temperaments.

Hairy-nosed Wombat with stripes."

While the shaggy ape-man's two heads appear identical, their personalities are as different as night and day, the scientists claim.

"The head on the right side gave us a welcoming smile when he saw us. His eyes lit up with curiosity and he used the right hand to give us a friendly wave," reveals Dr. Fegland.

"But the head on the left bared his fangs and let loose a loud, frightening roar. He balled his left hand into a fist and shook it in a threatening manner.

"For a moment, it looked as if the Bigfoot would charge us a sort of 'What can I do?' shrug of apology, then the creature fled into the woods."

Fellow scientists call the discovery the biggest development in Bigfoot research since the controversial Patterson-Gimlin film, showing a man-beast ambling through the woods, surfaced in 1967.

"Dr. Fegland has shed new light on the Bigfoot mystery," writes British anthropologist Edmund Makepeace. "We now cans call the elusive creature, is not only very real, it's subject to the same kinds of birth defects as man."

Tales of a two-headed Bigfoot roaming the region have been told by campers for more than a decade.

"Sightings have been reported to forest rangers dating back accounts is the creature's 'split personality.'

"In one chilling encounter, a female hiker claims she was set upon by the two-headed Bigfoot as she skinny-dipped alone.

"The more-aggressive head drooled lustfully and groped her breast with the left hand. But the right head intervened, scolding the other with monkey-like chattering and smacking the left hand away.

"As the two bickering heads growled at each other, she escaped."

Such accounts intrigued the scientists, who spent six months tramping through the backwoods, camera gear in tow, before successfully photographing the ultra-rare freak of nature on November 1.

Scientists have long speculated that Bigfoot is a surviving representative of Gigantopithecus, a huge, hairy cousin of man believed to be extinct for 500,000 years.

"What I saw in those woods looked very much like reconstructions of Gigantopithecus —

MAN IS HOT STUFF AFTER WALKING ON FIRE

'IF YOU CAN STEP COALS, YOU CAN

By DORIAN WAGNER

BERNIE GIEBLER was a shy man. He was the one who always had something stuck in his teeth, his voice always cracked and, more often than not, his socks didn't match.

He had three college degrees, but stuttered so badly he couldn't put them to use. His was a pitiful life — until he met motivational guru and fire-walking coach Hunter Keef.

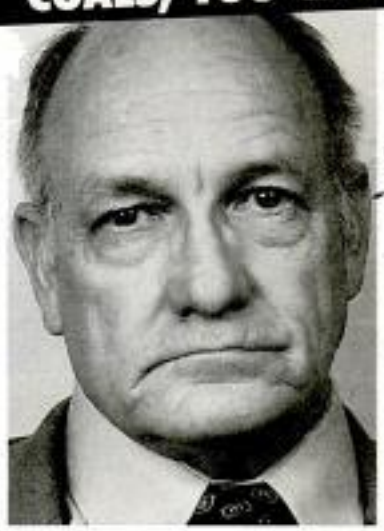
"I teach people that if they can walk over a bed of hot coals, they can do anything," says Keef, the author of Success: Learning to Take the Heat. "Bernie was subconsciously telling himself he was always going to be a droopy dork, but I showed him he didn't have to if he didn't want to.

"Someone just needed to light a fire under his butt, and that's pretty much what I did."

The 6-foot-5, bronzed, blond, buff-bodied inspirational speaker appears to be the epitome of success to Giebler and others who look to him for inspiration. He speaks with great energy during his seminars, never seems to stop to breathe or rest, and his enthusiasm is contagious.

"Hunter made me feel like I could do anything and long as I believed I could," says Giebler. "He danced around so much on stage, his energy was literally hypnotizing.

"So when he told us to walk over a 10-foot path of 1,500-degree burning coals, no doubts or human barbecue thoughts even crossed our minds. We just did it." Keef went first, then sent the barefoot crowd one by one across the pit of burning embers set up outside.



"WALKING on a bed of hot coals changed my life forever. Everything in my life has gone from a negative to a positive," claims Giebler.

"He threw his fists into the air, yelled a fiery 'Yes!' at each of us and waved us toward the red hot charcoal," Giebler remembers. "I would have expected to skip and hop around like a Mexican jumping beans or kernels of popcorn, but instead we all calmly strolled over the fire.

"No blisters. No burns. No scars. The coals crunched under my feet, but didn't hurt me. I felt like Jesus walking on water."

And soon afterward, Giebler started to notice a trend toward the better in his life.

"I went to a restaurant and ordered a hamburger and fries, and

MY NEIGHBOR'S KID LOOKS LIKE BAT BOY — CAN YOU HELP HIM?

DEAR EDITOR, This is a plea to get in touch with Dr. William Drakensberg, the plastic surgeon from South Africa who was going to make Bat Boy into a normal-looking person.

My neighbors have a little one who is three years old who looks a lot like that boy. He has a few razor sharp teeth, but only on the side like fangs slits. He has a sweet and gentle nature, but is not a child you'd want to take out in public.

Who knows why this happened, but no one gives his parents any hope. If Dr. Drakensberg could talk to them it would lift such a burden. — Mary Guervara, Colorado Springs, Colo.

SPAYED & NEUTERED: SADDAM CASTRATED

Unkindest cut of all ensures dictator will produce no heirs!

By MICHAEL CHIRON

IF YOU think of former strongman Saddam Hussein as a ballsy guy, think again — he's gentle as a lamb after being surgically castrated by coalition doctors!

That's the stunning revelation of a medical source, who says the current Iraqi regime took the extreme measure to ensure that the fiendish dictator can never produce heirs who might someday seize power in Iraq.

"After coalition forces killed Saddam's sons Uday and Qusay, rumors surfaced that the fugitive ex-president was plotting to father another child to keep his line going," explains the source.

"When he was captured last December, his enemies resolved to nip any such plans in the bud."

ly jewels was performed shortly after Saddam was dragged from his spider hole by U.S. troops.

"The early footage shown on TV of Saddam looking bewildered and docile was taken after the operation," reveals the medical source.

Having his testicles forcibly lopped off was a big psychological blow to the macho tyrant, who was often photographed toting guns and swords and considered himself the embodiment of Iraqi manhood.

"Saddam's 'dinosaur eggs,' as he called them, were his pride and joy — losing them must have really crushed his spirit," remarks biographer Qamar al-Fattah.

"In Arabian society, eunuch. To become one was doubtless quite humbling."

Yet guards at the prison where Saddam is held claim the snip 'em off surgery has had a positive effect on the once-brutal megalomaniac.

"Saddam told us he feels calmer and more at ease these days," says a prison insider. "He doesn't feel angry all the time any more.

"Still, it's a little strange hearing a falsetto voice come out of this big beefy guy, who used to deliver speeches in a commanding baritone."

Castrated men typically become less aggressive, due to their drastically lowered testosterone levels. And in this case, that's a major side benefit.

coalition's interests," explains the medical source. "That way, even if by some fluke he returns to power, he won't go back to invading his neighbors and making mischief in the region.

"All his aggressive impulses will be gone. He'll be more interested in working on the macrame he's picked up as a hobby in jail than in territorial conquest."

Pentagon officials have vigorously denied any U.S. involvement in Operation Snip, and Saddam's castration has been kept secret to avoid enraging diehard loyalists. But rumors have leaked out.

To many Iraqi men who had body parts amputated in the dictator's torture chambers, word that Saddam suffered the same fate is welcome news.

"That butcher's goons chopped off my manhood," says Jaabir al-Badee, who now works as a female impersonator in Baghdad.

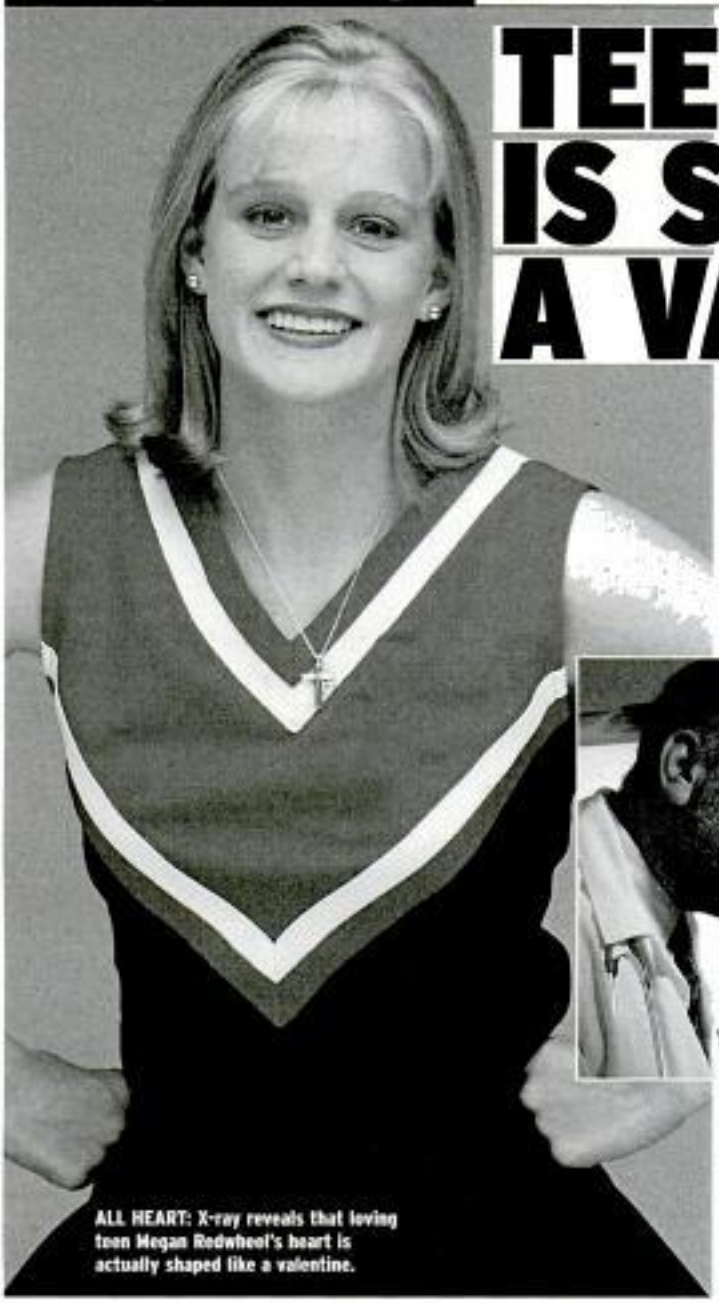
MEDICAL MIRACLE

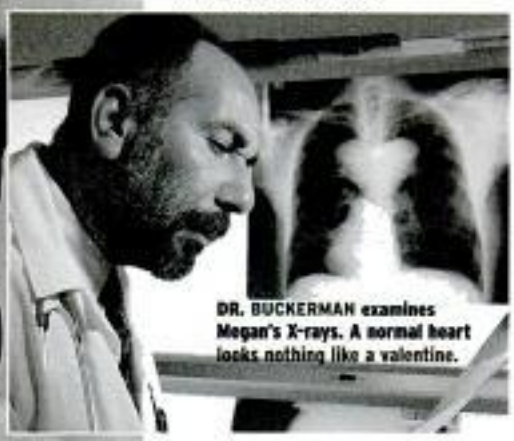
TEEN'S HEART IS SHAPED LIKE A VALENTINE!



ALL HEART: X-ray reveals that loving teen Megan Redwheel's heart is actually shaped like a valentine.

By MICHAEL CHIRON

TEENAGER Megan Redwheel is a walking, talking medical miracle — because she's the only human being on Earth who's heart is actually shaped like a valentine!



DR. BUCKERMAN examines Megan's X-rays. A normal heart looks nothing like a valentine.

"The first time I looked at an X-ray of Megan's heart I thought one of my colleagues in the radiology department was playing a prank on me," says her cardiologist, Dr. Neil Buckerman.

"In all of the medical literature there's not a previous case of an individual whose heart looks like this — and the odds of a child being born with a 'valentine heart' and surviving more than a few hours has got to be somewhere in the neighborhood of one in 500 million."

Megan, 18, had no idea there was anything unusual about her heart until the St. Louis teen joined her high school cheerleading squad last year and experienced lightheadedness during practice.

Doctors determined that her heart rhythm was abnormal and she was referred to the cardiologist.

"When Dr. Buckerman told me my heart was shaped like a valentine and sketched a drawing of it for me on a blackboard, I didn't get his point at first because I thought that's what a heart was supposed to look like," the perky blonde cheerleader says.

"Now that I know my heart is one of a kind, I think it's kind of cool. I've always liked Valentine's Day and now it's like it's my own special day."

Normally the human heart, which is about the size of a man's fist, is shaped like a lumpy melon.

Nuns raise money for children's hospital by holding bikini car wash

AN ITALIAN convent that needed to raise millions of lira for a new children's hospital came up with a startling way to do it — the nuns stripped down to teeny thong bikinis for an eye-popping car wash!

"Yes, many are upset by the notion of nuns displaying their bodies," says Mother Superior Anna Maria Francosi, cent Sorrows convent.

"In fact, I myself have been the object of outrageous accusations of lesbianism just because I openly admitted that the idea was mine.

"It's ridiculous. It just so happens that most of our sisters are athletic, healthy, svelte young ladies with taut, flat tummies, long coltish ample bosoms. You don't have to be a lesbian to figure out that many people would appreciate their God-given physical beauty. Now if you'll excuse me, I feel a bit flushed."

Despite the controversy, the car wash was a smashing success, raising the target amount of 50 million lira

A spokesman for the Vatican Department of Propriety says they will decide whether or not to censure the convent after they finish reviewing videotapes of the nearly naked nuns in action.

"It will take several weeks, perhaps months of intense study to come to a decision," says Monsignor Giuseppe

"A muscular wall, called the septum, divides the heart lengthwise into left and right sides," explains Dr. Buckerman. "A valve divides each side into two chambers — an upper atrium and lower ventricle.

"But Megan's organ looks almost nothing like a normal four-chambered heart. The two upper chambers are enlarged, while both the right and left ventricles are undersized, with a form of stenosis — narrowing — that creates a 'point' at the bottom.

"The result is a heart that looks uncannily like one you'd see on a Valentine's Day card."

Although doctors determined that the congenital heart defect could not be corrected, a simple surgical procedure has eliminated the arrhythmia that caused her dizziness.

The spunky cheerleader has had no further health problems and is now back to doing flips on the playing field.

"Although Megan's heart is different from the norm, it's been getting the job done since she was born — trying to fix it would be a mistake," the cardiologist explains.

The teen's parents agree that she has a great heart.

"Megan is an incredibly loving, unselfish and giving person," says her mom Cathy. "If anyone on Earth should have a valentine for a heart, it's her."

SIAM HAS NO TWINS!

– King Bhumibol Adulyadej

IN AN amazingly ironic announcement, the king of Siam has officially announced the country has no twins.

"I have no idea where this Siamese twin idea came from," says King Bhumibol Adulyadej. "Whenever two babies come out attached, doctors immediately name them Siamese. We're a close-knit country, but it's not like we're all attached at the hip or anything."

Siam is the original name for the country now known as Thailand, however most residents still refer to themselves as Siamese. King Adulyadej is the longest-serving head of state, in power since 1946.

"Since the beginning of my rule, I've never heard of a single set of conjoined twins being born here. But I'm afraid the rest of the world is under the impression that the whole kingdom is crawling with intertwined freaks.

"We don't even have any regular twins," he adds. "Not a single pair."

The first-ever set of attached twins, Chang and Eng, were indeed born in Siam in 1811, but his majesty insists it was only a fluke.

"It never happened before that and it hasn't happened after. One little slip up and the world goes crazy and crowns our country the namesake of weirdos.

SKINNY Tina Corkman can't wait to be as round as a beach ball – and she's on a 20,000-calorie-a-day feeding frenzy to do it!

By VICKIE YORK

FLAKY feminist Tina Corkman has launched a one-woman campaign to redefine the American concept of beauty. The svelte book editor is deliberately fattening up — and vows to keep pigging out until she weighs a scale-crunching 1,000 pounds!

"For too long, beauty in our society has been defined by men who view women only as sex objects," declares the 30-year-old women's libber.

"As a result, all across America, females of all ages are starving themselves — and mutilating their bodies with liposuction — in pursuit of an unattainable, Barbie doll-like ideal."

"Well enough is enough. It's time to fight back."

Right now, 5-foot-6 Tina weighs 132 pounds, with a slim waist and firm, compact rump that often earns her unwanted wolf whistles from construction workers. But her trim physique will soon be history — last week she embarked on a belly-ballooning 20,000 calorie-a-day diet.

"My goal is to reach 1,000 pounds in six months," Tina announces.

While most gals would dread the wait to look like a beach ball.

"Dating back to prehistoric times, the true ideal form for women was always the rotund Earth Mother archetype," Tina insists. "Look at paintings from the Renaissance and you see how 'full-figured' women were.

"It's only since the advent of Playboy and other sexist propaganda that we've come to believe that grown women should have flatter bellies than teenage boys."

A typical breakfast for Tina now consists of a six cheese omelets, 16 pancakes smothered in butter and maple syrup, plus a dozen strips of bacon, washed down by a gallon of chocolate milk. Lunch consists of three large meat-lover's pizzas with glazed breadsticks and four Milky Way bars as a snack. Dinner is six cheeseburgers with a mountainous heap of French fries, plus two gallons of ice cream and a huge slab of chocolate cake for dessert.

The porker-wanna-be has already gained an impressive 12 pounds.

"It's so empowering to touch your belly and feel a womanly paunch forming there," she enthuses.

FAST-FOOD RESTAURANT SERVES FOOD AT 35 M.P.H.

By BERNIE PYLE

A ROVING restaurant gives new meaning to the term "fast food." The "meal-mobile" is a van that takes orders, cooks and serves food, all while traveling at 35 miles per hour.

"People are always on the go," says Harry Ullman, one of the two owners. "And even stopping at a drive-thru for a meal slows you down. Our restaurant lets you stay on schedule."

Ullman takes the orders and serves the food while his partner Elaine Silver cooks the meals.

COOKING at 35 m.p.h. does present some problems . . . especially when turning corners.

The van cruises down the road trolling for customers. A big sign on the side of the van reads "Honk if you want a hot dog." Writing on the back of the van also gives the van's phone number and e-mail address if anyone wants to order en route.

Once the order is taken, the cars line up next to each other. Money is sent through a chute connecting the two cars, and then the food comes back the other way.

Surprisingly, selling food while traveling 35 m.p.h. isn't against the law. "That's probably because no one ever conceived of such a thing," admits Ullman.

So far the restaurant is receiving rave reviews, although Ullman

REAL-LIFE 'WALDO' FOUND HIDING!

By JAKE ANDERSON

AN ESCAPED convict attempted to hide from police by wearing a "Waldo" disguise, but it backfired on him.

Bank robber Wally Doober, a.k.a. "Waldo" broke out of Illinois State Penitentiary last August and tried to avoid capture by dressing like the cartoon character in the "Where's Waldo?" books.

"The cartoon Waldo is really excellent at blending into crowds," says Doober. "That's why it's such a challenge to find him. So I thought if I put on the same red and white striped shirt and beanie, along with the blue pants that he wears, nobody would ever see me."

But Doober's picture showed up on a cable TV show called "America's Least Wanted," and somebody recognized him. Soon the word got out that an escaped convict was on the loose dressed like "Waldo."

Says Alan Martin, the police officer who captured Doober, "Once we knew he was in our town, we were all on our car radios asking each other 'Where's Waldo? Where's Waldo?' We all wanted to be the one who found him."

Although Doober's disguise worked for a while, Martin spotted him.

RUB YOUR HEAD ON SOME BOOBS!

. . . & WATCH YOUR HAIR SPROUT!

By HOWARD SCOTT

ATTENTION bald guys! You can grow a full head of hair — and you only need the boobs of a willing wife or girlfriend.

Excited scientists say the Breast Baldness Cure (BBC) worked in 87 percent of cases.

"Our study is based on the measured hair regeneration of 100 bald males who rubbed their heads on the breasts of a female partner for 10 minutes twice a day," says Swiss scientist Anton Luss.

"After three months of treatment, 78 men reported dense regrowth, nine described their scalp coverage as thin to moderate and 13 said they saw no difference.

"Among the control group, only five men reported moderate to dense regrowth and the remainder experienced no change.

"Based on our study, we believe BBC is the natural answer to male pattern baldness among males said their research grew out of an obscure medical report concerning the health of prostitutes in Amsterdam.

A police doctor noticed that johns who enjoyed rubbing their heads on the breasts of hookers all had thick, healthy hair. The physician noted this phenomenon in passing, and drew no conclusions from his finding.

"I read the report in a medical journal, got really excited and ran with it," Luss says. "BBC is the happy result."

Luss and his team say breast size made no difference to the

"The men who reported dense scalp coverage say their wives or girlfriends were willing to let them rub their heads across their breasts for a full 10 minutes twice a day for three months," he says.

"Obviously the willingness of the female partner is a major component of the success or failure of the treatment. A few men told us that their partners occasionally complained of sore nipples, but most said the rubbing caused no discomfort to the reported by men who experienced only thin to moderate regrowth, was that BBC stimulated them to have sex, often interrupting or even stopping the treatment.

"For BBC to work, breast rubbing must continue for a full 10 minutes twice a day or the results will be disappointing," he says.

Luss says he has no idea why BBC causes hair to grow. "At present we don't understand the mechanism involved," he said. "We do know that gay men who

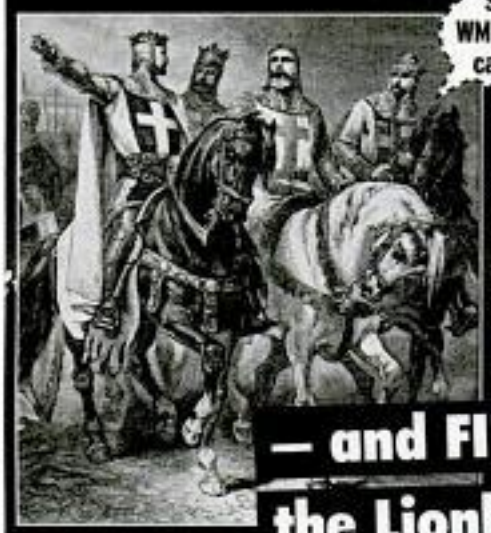
BY ED ANGER

As the crisis in Iraq spirals out of control, Ed says . . .

LET'S START UP THE CRUSADES AGAIN



— and FINISH the job Richard the Lionhearted started!

I'M MADDER than King Arthur trying to sit at the head of his round table at how these weak-wristed liberal pansies are bad-mouthing the war in Iraq!

The wimps are in such a tizzy on account of all the beheadings, bloody house-to-house fighting and whatnot, they say we oughta bring our boys home 'cause we don't "belong" in the Middle East anyway.

Hogwash!

Why, what we oughta do is start up the Crusades all over again and fight those camel-kissing Muslims tooth and nail

Dubya used the word "crusade" in a speech about the war on terror and the media just about tarred and feathered him.

But winning the Crusades once and for all is EXACTLY what America needs to to do, folks.

The last go-around ended in a draw, with us Christians controlling civilized places like France and Spain and heathens running backward places like Arabia and Turkey.

What we've got to do now is to take back the Holy Land for Jesus — and let's not quit until we convert every last one of those godless, turban-wearing heathens into a God-fearing Christian.

hearted led our side and the only difference between the armies was whose swords were straight and whose were curved. America has the mightiest military in the world — plus nukes.

Once we've kicked the Muslims' butts, let's burn up all their pictures of Mohammed, flying carpets and other unholy relics — then tear down their devilish mosques.

In their place, let's build churches where families can go hand in hand to praise the Lord. Can't you just picture smiling little Arab boys and girls clapping their hands and singing gospel tunes?

Know-nothings claim Allah and God are just time Jesus told you "Chop off this teenager's hand for stealing an apple," or "Blow yourself to smithereens and I'll pay you back with a harem of big-hootered virgins"?

Some "experts" swear you can't convert Muslim fanatics.

Hey, listen: Time was Africa was full of savages who worshipped hunks of wood and plopped any missionary they laid eyes on in a pot for supper. Nowadays, a lot of those folks can belt out a Negro spiritual nicer than our own blacks here in America.

Trust me, once the Holy Spirit gets in these Arabs, they'll sing a whole different tune too. Heck, I betcha you'll under his pew, speaking in tongues.

That "old time religion" was good enough for Moses, for Little David — and it sure as heck is good enough for Sadr and his crowd of bloodthirsty barbarians.

When I ran this Crusades idea up the flagpole at the office, the liberals whined that America shouldn't "start a holy war."

Well, buckaroos, we're already IN a holy war. Doubt it? Just do some sightseeing in New York and look for the 84th floor of the World Trade Center.

Osama Bin Laden started this holy war — but we're going to finish it, by jiminy.

LESS IS NOT MORE . . .

THE SECRET TO OVERCOMING PANTY-SHOPPING PANIC

A gift guide for guys with galpals!

By APRIL SUMMERS

WHY IS IT that guys insist on buying frilly little lingerie and impractical underthings for their girlfriends? For birthdays, holidays and anniversaries, they descend on stores like Victoria's Secret in droves in search of some lacy, racy number they think will make a sexpot out of their ladyfriends.

"What you're really doing is terrorizing her because now she feels like she has to wear the darn thing," says intimate apparel expert Tanya Bellini. "Those too-hot-to-trot numbers only work for the models in the catalogs. Real women need real underwear with real support. You just can't get that from a piece of string."

SEXY PANTIES look great on catalog models, and really turn guys on. But the truth is most gals find them very uncomfortable.

She advises men to save their money and buy something their women will really get use of, even if it's not super-sexy.

"Less is not more when it comes to intimate apparel, except when you're talking about cost. The teenier the bikini, thong or bra, the more it costs — and the less use she'll get out of it."

Picking the right skivvies can be confusing, though, so Bellini offers several tried-and-true tips for guaranteed satisfaction.

"Just figure out what part of your girl's figure needs a little boost and focus on that for a simple solution."

Flabby tummies are the number one obstacle to overcome. The key, she says, is covering it up.

"If your girlfriend has a bit of a spare tire around her waist, don't buy a cute little string bikini. They'll only pinch the pudge and make her look and feel worse.

"Think granny panty — they need to fit loose enough and rise high enough to wrap the roll."

Once the belly is bundled, Bellini suggests picking up something to make a more shapely silhouette out of your gal's saddle thighs.

"If a woman is pear-shaped, she's got 'thick' thighs. Once again, a teeny weenie bikini won't do a thing for lumpy legs. Go for make her bottom half appear thinner."

And even if your gal has great legs and a tight tummy, she probably still suffers from saggy butt syndrome.

"The droopy derriere is a big downfall with women. If her butt has that unsightly 'long' look to it, avoid a thong — unless you want it all to just hang out. Right now, there are miracle knickers on the market that have built in pads to give an instant lift. The effect? A nicely rounded rump."

With your researched panty purchase, you've successfully concealed, constricted and lifted, and your girlfriend should love her new sculpted perfection. However, Bellini does have one warning: "None of these suggestions are particularly sexy by

STAFF PAID FOR 23 YEARS TO TEACH IN SCHOOL WITH NO STUDENTS, SAY INVESTIGATORS!

By GEORGE SANFORD

THE ENTIRE staff of a school was fired after stunned education officials discovered they hadn't worked for 23 years – and it had been just as long since a single student set foot in the place!

The principal, teachers, lunchroom workers, janitors and other employees of the Rajendra Memorial High School in West Champaran duped the school district for two decades in order to continue collecting their salaries long after the student body dwindled to nothing, an investigation revealed.

"All the names of the 600 students supposedly enrolled in the school were fake," according to an investigator.

The hoax was finally exposed after the Bihar School Examination Board Chairman Subhash Sharma made a surprise inspection.

The surprise was on the school boss. To his amazement, Sharma found the halls and classrooms completely empty.

"You could hear a pin drop," he told reporters.

The only people in the building were three flunkies hired by the absent teachers to answer the phones when school district officials called and maintain the illusion that the school was still in operation.

According to the Statesman of Calcutta newspaper, the flunkies told investigators, "The principal resides about 20 miles from here." While he had always made sure they received their meager

CHEEK TO CHEEK: The ghosts of JFK and Marilyn Monroe cozy up in the Lincoln Bedroom.

By CONSTANCE RIO

THE OVER-SEXED spirits of President John F. Kennedy and Marilyn Monroe shared a sizzling love session in the White House just days ago and we've got the photographs to prove it.

The stark, black-and-white pictures clearly show the wild-eyed ex-commander-in-chief groping and pawing at the legendary sexpot who is known to Kennedy on numerous occasions before her suicide in 1962 and his assassination a year later.

It's unclear who snapped the pictures of the late-night rendezvous in the Lincoln Bedroom.

But the senior Bush administration official who leaked copies to Weekly World News and other major media hinted that first lady Laura Bush not only witnessed the otherworldly tryst, she had the presence of mind to get the hard evidence she needed to prove she wasn't seeing things or making the story up.

Scott McClelland declined to discuss the alleged ghostly incident.

When asked point blank if the first lady witnessed JFK and Marilyn's alleged bawdy round of lovemaking, he would only say, "I'm sure Mrs. Bush doesn't care to discuss anything she might have seen two consenting adults do in the privacy of a bedroom, I don't care how long she stood there slack-jawed and watched."

Details of the JFK-Monroe sex party remain sketchy.

But a second White House

"were very noisy lovers" and they "talked dirty."

The source went on to say that an unidentified member of the Bush family who was having trouble sleeping on November 14 "heard a woman tittering and shrieking, 'Don't! Stop! Don't! Stop! Oh, John don't stop! No — wait a minute! Do stop! Did you hear somebody? Shhhh! That's not your wife is it?' around 2 a.m."

Investigating further, the family member — presumably Mrs. Bush — reportedly found sexual positions," continues the source. The revved-up wraiths were visible, says the source, "for about five minutes" before they "vanished into thin air in the afterglow of what obviously was some pretty amazing sex."

Even as the White House continues to play down the incident, paranormal researchers — including at least two who work for the CIA — are falling all over themselves to weigh in.

Most believe JFK's restless spirit was energized by the

"I'm not at all surprised that Kennedy's spirit returned to the White House on the anniversary of his death," says one expert. "But Marilyn's ghost showing up is a puzzler.

"My best guess is that they had to cut short an illicit love session back in the 1960s, and they simply came back together in the here and now to take care of the unfinished business.

"I can't say that I blame the president for wanting to pick up where he left off. It's true

STUPID BABY NAMES

Parents who condemn kids to a life of ridicule deserve to die!

By BECKY TODD

SOME parents-to-be punish their babies before they're even born when they slap terrible names on them, says expert Chanda Lear.

"I hated my mother so much I repeatedly tried to kill her," says Lear, Los Angeles author of the bestseller Dear Ma, Die!

"In prison, I learned I wasn't alone. My research shows millions of innocent children are given life sentences of shame because their idiot folks are obsessed with calling them something 'original.' "

Lear provides a sample of the worst baby names:

- Two cheesy words that make one: Summer Rain, Sparkling Jade, Bow Hunter, Kandy Kane, Christian Church, Orange Jello, Dark Brown, Heaven Leigh.
- Attempts to sound snooty that went horribly wrong: La'Trine, Brayne, D'Agostino, Lord Fru Fru, Lacie Pantee, Hollingsworthington IV.
- Places picked on map then mangled: Dacoda, Kentukki, Meshugan, Tinbuktoo.
- Where baby was conceived: Pool Hall, Bowling Alley, Tramp Oleen, Confeshun Booth, Teachers' Lounge.
- Twins or siblings: Pixie and Dixie, Pinto and Lima (Bean), Up and Down, Coffee and Tee, Dusk and Dawn.
- Body parts: Harry Dick, Ophelia Balls, Rod Johnson, Uterus, Placenta.
- African-American girl names: Shaneka, Zaneka, Taneka, Moneka, Foneka, Kaneka, La'Neka, Waneka.

WAL-MART MANAGER GIVES WHAT HE GETS

— Crooks complain after receiving a cash refund with same bogus bills they used to pay for merchandise!

SOMETIMES it's more fun to teach crooks a lesson than just plain old calling the police.

And in a bizarre tale of random luck and quick thinking, that's exactly what happened at a Cincinnati area Wal-Mart when two thieves tried to pass off counterfeit bills as the real thing.

Employees at the Westwood store found out first hand just how dumb crooks can be after the botched buying scheme.

Police say the two used funny money to purchase several items, intending to return them later and get real cash back.

dope of the week

"A male came into the store, purchased approximately $400 worth of merchandise — a DVD player and some DVDs," says Lieutenant Russ Neville.

The store manager says the employee who sold him the goods noticed the bills were phony — but not until after the transaction was complete and the man had left the store. He had no clue what was about to happen next, and figured it was too late to do anything about the sham.

But incredibly, says Lt. Neville, "A female came back a short time later with a receipt from that purchase and returned approximately $300 worth of that merchandise."

She was hoping to get real money back, but Wal-Mart outsmarted her and gave her the same bogus bills she gave them.

As the manager explains, though, the story gets better: The thieves actually had the nerve to come back a third time, this time complaining about having been given counterfeit money. They were told to leave the store and tell the police if they had a problem with the way the transaction panned out.

"I think that shows that Wal-Mart is so smart if they picked up on that," says the Lieutenant.

Police were originally concerned about the corporation putting phony currency back into circulation, but were assured by Wal-Mart that any cashier from now on would know exactly how bogus the bills were — that had obviously marked up each one with a bold, black counterfeit detecting pen!

CRIME BLOTTER

OH SHOOT, I'M GROUNDED AGAIN

No one ever liked being grounded, but one angry preteen took her protest too far — she shot her mom in the face while she was sleeping!

Elvira Marion Walton, 48, was found dead in her bed by her 10-year-old son.

"Apparently the motive is because the daughter was upset that the mother and the girl has been charged with murder.

"She is your average 12-year-old, hormones and everything," says an older sister. "There's nothing that bad to make her do that to my mama."

10 INJURED IN O'REILLY DEBATE CLUB BRAWL!

By KATE VASQUEZ

POLICE arrested three members of a college debate club named for FOX News host Bill O'Reilly, after a brawl broke out during an argument over prayer in schools.

"We kept telling them to shut up and they wouldn't," says Stillman Meese, president of the Bill O'Reilly Forensic Society, as she awaited arraignment on assault charges. "So we decided to let our fists do the talking.

"Judging from how many of those weak sisters went blubbering off to the hospital, I'd say this is one debate we won hands down – literally."

The O'Reilly club has no official connection to the in-your-face FOX personality, who's known for loudly cutting off guests with opposing viewpoints.

"We just named it after Bill to show our respect for the decisive way he cuts through the nonsense and tells it like it is – you're wrong, you've always been wrong, you'll always be wrong, and if you have a problem with that then you better take it on the road and keep walkin', pal."

Witnesses say the forensics fracas started within minutes of the debate's opening. Members of the O'Reilly club began cat-calling as their opponents' lead speaker argued against organized prayer in schools. Then Meese and two club officers jumped onstage and slammed the anti-prayer speaker across the back with a hymnal, sending him flying into the audience.

O'REILLY'S followers are willing to duke it out for their beliefs.

HOW TO TELL IF A GUY IS GOOD IN BED

– before you hop in the sack

By G.A. GUNN

LADIES, before you date that hunky guy you met last night, read the 10 vital signs that will reveal if he's a STUD or a DUD in bed.

The list was compiled from a dozen different American and European studies of male sexual behavior and was edited by Weekly World News' own crack medical reporting team.

Here's what you must look for to determine if the man of your dreams will bring you bliss or the blahs:

DUD: If the ring finger of his right hand is the same length or shorter than his forefinger, dump him fast. This guy has all the sex drive of a castrated camel.

STUD: Look for square palms and plenty of hair on the back of your guy's hands. Scientists say this means he's probably descended from the ancient Neanderthals and will be a tireless animal in the sack.

DUD: Does he have a huge beer belly? If he does, get rid of him. All he'll do is squash you into the mattress like a bug and the pleasure will be all his, not yours.

STUD: If your prospective date is balding, get ready to have a good time. This night like the Energizer Bunny.

DUD: Steer clear of a man who talks constantly about his dear old mom. A mama's boy is useless in bed. Given the choice of sex partners, he'll choose a nurse over a nympho every time — so what does that tell you?

STUD: Go for the guy with a real big nose. A huge hooter means he's big in other places.

DUD: Drop a man whose eyes are set too close together. He'll turn in an average performance in bed, but will tire easily. Poor thing, you don't want to be lying there, still in heat, while he snores like a ruptured pig at your side.

STUD: Wide-set eyes are a different matter entirely. This guy is an excellent lover and he will go out of his way to pleasure you. If you like to experiment and get kinky, he's the stud for you.

DUD: As a general rule, steer clear of lawyers. They'll bore you to death in the sack, and if you try to get too kinky they'll wind up suing you for sexual malpractice.

STUD: Cops are very good in bed and they have wonderful ways of using their handcuffs. Be warned though, never allow him to bring his pistol to bed. One gun in the sack is quite enough.

Follow these tips faithfully and you'll enjoy your sex life enormously. But all the studies warn not to have sex on a first date — you don't want your stud to think you're easy.

BALD HEAD, HAIRY CHEST: This guy is a fountain of testosterone and a lion in bed!

ARE YOU KIDDING?

The largest populations of men with big noses are in Wisconsin, Delaware and Ohio.

AMERICA'S MOST OUTSPOKEN COLUMNIST

Dear Dotti

What's with the dentist asking me to strip?

DEAR DOTTI: I signed on with a new dentist last week and her "chair-side manner" was odd to say the least.

The first thing she did after she got me in the examining room was tell me to take off my clothes! And then, for what seemed like minutes on end, she raped me with her hungry eyes! To make matters worse, before I could gather my wits and put my clothes back on and get the heck out of there, she knocked me coo-coo with a blast of nitrous oxide. I'm pretty sure she made love to me because when I finally came to, she was lying beside me in the chair smoking a cigarette telling me I was "wonderful."

Dotti, I was so shocked and embarrassed I didn't say a word. I just put my clothes back on, paid my bill and left. Should I find a new dentist or . . . what? I'm a single man, age 24, who isn't very comfortable around women. Now I feel like something precious has been taken from me – my virginity. – Ravaged Patient in Troy, Ala.

Dear Ravaged Patient: The next time you decide to have one of these little fantasies, nerd, do me a favor and keep it to yourself. As to how I know you're lying about your little "sexcapade," get real – there ain't no way you can do the "snake dance" on one of those dinky dental chairs. I know because I've tried – SEVERAL times!

CONFIDENTIALS

Dear Single and Pregnant in Hartford, Conn.: You should have thought about the potential for disaster before you told a complete stranger you'd do "ANYTHING for a ride" in his conversion van.

I Am Woman in Perth Amboy, N.J.: For every gal who slept her way to the top, 10,000 slept their way to the bottom. But I've got to admit, ho, that, judging from the resume you sent, it looks like you're one of the winners.

My new neighbor is too hot to handle

DEAR DOTTI: I'm a single woman in my 40s and I've got a new neighbor who likes to traipse around her house naked. I'm not going to lie about it – she's very easy on the eyes, with large, firm bosoms and a nice pear-shaped bottom that any gal would be proud to sit on.

As for looking at her, well, I wouldn't if I didn't have to. But I live in a two-story house and when I'm in my upstairs bedroom panning around with my binoculars, I can't help but see right through that little crack in her curtains and, of course, there she is without her clothes on. This isn't a sometimes thing, either.

Cindy works in a home office and I think she must be a nudist. Anyway, when I see her I experience these "stirrings" in my loins that I'm pretty sure are sexual, and it scares me because I'm a virgin. What should I do? – Shocked Neighbor in Destin, Fla.

Dear Shocked Neighbor: The way I see it you can do one of two things: Sell your home and move to a convent – or trash the binoculars, you idiot!

I SHOULDN'T HAVE PUT VIAGRA IN THE WINE

DEAR DOTTI: Now I've done it. I swiped some of my dad's Viagra and sneaked it into the wine at church.

Now with communion coming up, there's going to be trouble – and I'll bet you anything I get caught. I'm afraid to tell the priest because he'll probably tell my dad. But if I don't do something, things could get crazy – real crazy. Tell me what to do? – V-Boy in Vero Beach, Fla.

Dear V-Boy: The solution to you problem is as plain as pretty on my face. On communion day, make sure you're first in line – then knock the chalice over by faking an epileptic fit!

WARNING: DON'T ENTER POLITICS – IT CAN TURN YOUR DAUGHTER GAY!

By MICHAEL FORSYTH

ARE you considering a run for public office? Before you throw your hat in the ring, be warned: Entering politics can turn your daughter gay!

An eye-opening university study reveals that daughters of politicians are 10 times more likely to become lesbians than other women.

"This is a syndrome that Vice President Dick Cheney, Missouri Congressman Dick Gephardt and former U.N. Ambassador Alan Keyes — whose daughters are all out-of-the-closet lesbians — have learned about the hard way," says psychiatrist Dr. Dan Feldingberg, co-author of the study.

"Girls are typically at a critical stage of their development when their dads launch careers in politics. Having a father absent from the household as he crisscrosses the land pursuing his political ambitions can do lasting damage to a girl's ability to form trusting bonds with males.

"In addition, daughters of politicians see how female voters are constantly wooed and 'seduced' — it's natural that they mirror that behavior."

Researchers studied the offspring of politicians at all levels, from the federal to local. They found that the percent of daughters who are lesbians is 31 percent — roughly 10 times the rate of female homosexuality in the general population.

ARE YOU KIDDING?

Despite their "macho" image, lesbians actually cry more often than straight women, researchers have found.

"Only a small fraction of these women are out of the closet," Dr. Feldingberg explains. "The majority maintain a low profile when it comes to their sexual orientation out of deference to their dads — they want to avoid causing them trouble on the campaign trail."

The lesbianism rate bears no correlation to party affiliation or political persuasion. Many of the politicians with gay daughters are staunch family-values activists, like Republican Keyes, who, during his unsuccessful bid for the Illinois Senate, chided Cheney's daughter Mary for "selfish hedonism" because she's gay.

"Needless to say, it was rather embarrassing for Keyes when his own daughter Maya came out as a lesbian on the Internet," the researcher notes.

Physical attractiveness doesn't seem to be a factor. Pretty blondes like Chrissy Gephardt, whose dad is former House Majority Leader, are just as likely to turn out girl-crazy as homely gals with stereotypically boxy, "mannish" builds.

The higher the political office you seek, the "more gay" you're daughter is likely to become, the study found.

"If you run for the school board, your daughter may only become bisexual," reveals Dr. Feldingberg. "If you're elected to the city council, expect a lipstick lesbian — a gay woman who appears feminine and whose attire and outward behavior is unlikely to embarrass you.

"But run for national office and the odds are high that your daughter will become a 'butch' type lesbian who shows up for Thanksgiving dinner in a leather jacket, sporting a Marine-style hairdo —

SONNY Bono's daughter Chastity wears the makeup –

IRONICALLY, Chrissy Gephardt likes her once-presidential-candidate dad Dick, but his name does nothing for her.

FORMER U.N. Ambassador Alan Keyes made fun of Cheney's lesbian daughter – and now look what happened to his!

FRENCHMEN INTO FROGS

By PAULA MARTIN

THE discovery of moderately intelligent bullfrogs in the sewers of Paris has stunned biologists who say that with the exception of a single chromosome, the amphibians are genetically indistinguishable from Frenchmen!

And that means "frogs," as the French like to call themselves, may be mutating into their namesake in what one expert calls "dazzling new proof of the theory of evolution."

Some Frenchmen aren't exactly thrilled with the idea that frogs are, for them, a step up on the evolutionary ladder.

But there's no arguing the fact that "Parisian sewer frogs" share many unique traits with their human antecedents, including:

- A comical tendency to "freeze up" and "tremble in fear" in the presence of a bar of soap or a stick of deodorant.
- A more serious refusal to defend themselves when threatened or attacked, although they don't seem to mind when American and British scientists go to bat for them.
- A taste for overpriced wines and haute cuisine, complete with lots of delicate sauces and other effeminate foods, like crepes.

SHOCKING discovery explains why the French refuse to join the coalition in Iraq.

any known accomplishment except, perhaps, those that are found in works of fiction and then imagined to be real.

The frogs also seem to enjoy being dressed up in popular French attire, such as striped shirts and miniature berets.

"There's no getting around it — we're witnessing the evolution of humans into an entirely new mutant species," says Dr. Gerhard Struber, the evolutionary biologist who discovered the frogs while studying bacteria "blooms" under the streets of Paris.

"The challenge before us now is to figure out how rapidly the transformation will occur, and whether humans other than the French will be affected.

"Canadians, many of whom are carriers of French blood, may be next.

"Interestingly, this may explain the French refusal to join the coalition in Iraq. It's notoriously dry and dusty there, just the sort of place that would be repellent to frogs."

News of the mutations sent shockwaves through the global scientific community as experts scrambled to explain what mysterious force of nature altered the chromosome that seems to be responsible for the mutations.

SECRETS of French frog transformation reside in the double helix.

To date, no fewer than 20 theories are making the rounds, although the most plausible seems to be that the French taste for booze — including daily wine-guzzling that begins in infancy — is at least a contributing factor.

"The amphibians don't have the ability to speak, which makes testing their intelligence a little dicey," says Struber. "But by measuring their ability to learn simple tasks — such as deciding whether to choose salmon fillet capped with a creamy lemon-dill sauce and served with modest portions of rice pilaf and ratatouille on an electrified grid or go instead for tender veal medallions sauteed in a sauce of Madeira and sliced mushrooms in a stainless steel food dish — we can see that they have IQs in the 65 to 80 range.

"That's a little better than the French population at large. The frogs can't speak with anything approaching fluency — they don't have the vocal apparatus to form any but the most rudimentary of sounds.

" 'Sacre bleu!' and 'Ribbet!' are about all we've heard out of them, except for one frog that keeps saying, 'Ce lion sait bien jouer du tuba,' which in English means, 'That lion sure knows how to play the tuba.'

"If anybody knows what that's all about, please — give me a call."

While Struber and other scientists continue to collect frogs and develop their theories on French evolution, world leaders — including President George Bush — are watching the situation closely.

"The President is both amused and appalled by this strange turn of events," says a senior Bush administration official in Washington.

"He's taken a lot of guff from the French over the war in Iraq, so the fact that they're turning into a bunch of frogs tickles him pink.

"On a more somber note, the President is a says in the Bible that in the 'end of days, the arrogant and godless ones will be punished, and they will cry out for mercy but their cries will not be heard.'

"He's pretty sure that's what all those frogs saying 'Sacre bleu!' is all about. I'm not the most religious guy in the world, but it kinda makes sense."

Back in France, President Jacques Chirac has made no public statements on the discovery of the frogs. However, inside sources say he's having conniptions over the bizarre situation, and has asked the French government to allocate billions of francs in emergency funding to find a possible cure.

But in what appears to have been a veiled reference, Chirac did say that Frenchmen "are the crown jewels of human evolution, and where the French go, ultimately, the world will follow."

The White House source couldn't disagree more.

"If that were the case, the whole damn world would have been hiding from Hitler — like the French did — instead of marching straight into Berlin to kick his sorry butt," says the insider.

"Sorry, Jacques, but the only people who seem to be following the French — are the frogs!"

KISSING frogs in France isn't apt to yield princes, though it may prompt a croak of "sacre bleu!"

IT IS NOW APPARENT WHY THE FRENCH REFUSED TO JOIN THE COALITION

NEW SPRAY MAKES HOMOSEXUALS INVISIBLE TO GAYDAR!

EVEN flamboyant Mary would seem like he-man Maury after spraying on Gaydar-Beater.

By MICHAEL CHIRON

GOOD NEWS for closet gays! A California company is marketing an amazing new spray that makes homosexuals invisible to the sixth sense some folks have for spotting them, commonly known as gaydar.

The manufacturers of Gaydar-Beater claim that the wonder product works on the same basic principle as the B-2 Stealth Bomber used by the U.S. Air Force.

"Even the most flamboyant gay man can blend unnoticed into a straight environment after spraying on Gaydar-Beater, which is odorless, invisible and earth-friendly," says a spokesman for the San Diego company, Advanced Pheromones Technologies.

"Given the current political climate and the nationwide backlash against homosexuals, the need for many gay men to appear straight as arrows has never been more pressing."

Some experts are skeptical, one prominent scientist pointing out that researchers "don't even know how gaydar works, only that controlled tests appear to confirm that it's a real phenomenon."

Even so, many family-values crusaders are calling for a ban on the spray, which costs $29.99 for a 12-ounce can.

"The thought of 'stealth gays' teaching in our schools, joining the military or running for public office is highly disturbing," says the Reverend Pete Forsby of Tulsa, Okla., who helped push through the constitutional ban on gay marriage in his state.

IN WHAT experts are calling the most startling scientific discovery of the century, a British astronomer has located a planet completely populated by nude supermodels!

Astronomer Robert Newcombe, of London's Royal National Observatory, made the astounding find while testing an experimental high-powered electron telescope over 600 times more powerful than the Hubble Telescope.

"At first I thought I was hallucinating due to lack of sleep and overwork," recalls Newcombe. "So I called several colleagues over to confirm what I saw. We were stunned."

What Newcombe and his colleagues observed on the planet Volare was a tropical paradise-like atmosphere, lush foliage, unusual-looking though friendly animals, and the most breathtakingly beautiful women and amazingly handsome men imaginable, all completely naked.

"Clearly, every one of them is a supermodel," continues Newcombe. "Actually, they're far better looking than any supermodels I've ever seen. And their sexual chemistry is incredibly powerful."

Newcombe finds both positive and negative aspects of his once-in-a-lifetime discovery. "The bad news is that the supermodels populate a planet coffee dates with them," observes Newcombe.

"But the good news is our technology is such that we are able to capture crystal-clear photos of the supermodels, which is invaluable for research. In fact, every researcher here immediately volunteered to work overtime studying the photos and to take them home over the weekend to continue their research. Now that's dedication."

How did this planet of supermodels originate? Newcombe and his colleagues at the observatory have three theories, each and time-travel experts. The theories are:

1) That a secret NASA project involved cloning supermodels and establishing the perfect environment for them to reproduce an ideal civilization on another planet in the event that Earth is destroyed by nuclear war or natural disaster.

2) That the supermodels are an ancient civilization which attained this level of perfection and had the intelligence to maintain their paradise throughout time.

3) That corporate America increase their company's profits.

The Royal National Observatory is currently holding high-level meetings with top worldwide government representatives in an attempt to decide how to deal with planet Volare. Whether there will be civilian space voyages there, whether the Volarians will travel here and how Earthlings will interact with them, are all under discussion.

Until then, the planet of supermodels is being closely monitored and studied, though according to Newcombe, "the

GREETING CARDS FOR DEATH ROW INMATES!

By MARK MILLER

AT LONG LAST, those who have friends and relatives on death row will now have help communicating their deepest feelings in writing, thanks to an exciting new line of greeting cards for death row inmates!

Presented by Final Message Cards, the greetings cover a variety of situations, including this one for Father's Day:

Dear Dad, hooray! It's Father's Day!
We wish our tears could stop
We know that you'd be here with us right now if you hadn't shot that cop.

Wedding anniversaries provide another popular opportunity to express deep emotions to death row spouses:

My darling when I married you
The moment was quite a thriller
Each day you filled with such surprises
Like finding out you're a serial killer!

Final Message's new holiday line has a touching greeting for every holiday need:

I'll be very sad this Christmas season
But where you are I won't wonder
Because I know my beloved friend will always be resting six feet under.

Perhaps the most popular of the death row cards are the crime-specific birthday greetings, such as:

Happy Birthday — it's so unfair
You're being blamed for strangling that nun
But rest assured when you're six-

POPE TO STAR IN REALITY SHOW

By BECKY TODD

TELEVISION producers are planning a new reality series that's shaping up to be a blockbuster — The Pope John Paul II Show, reveal insiders.

"We believe many viewers greatly admire His Holiness, supreme leader of the Roman Catholic Church," says Ricky Sloane, president and CEO of Windy Productions in Hollywood, Calif. "Everyone is curious about what a typical day is like for a Pope."

Sloane says he sent a film crew to Rome weeks ago to get footage for potential backers.

"The video was inspiring and uplifting," he says.

To promote his proposed show, the producer let Weekly World News into his private screening room! Here's an exciting preview from The Pope John Paul II Show:

7:00 a.m. — Pope John Paul II wakes up and yells for one of his assistants to shut off alarm clock.

7:05 a.m. — His Holiness prays and thanks God for another beautiful day.

7:06 a.m. to 12 noon — Nap.

12:00 noon — The Pope calls for one of his assistants to shut off alarm clock. Thanks God for another beautiful afternoon.

12:10 p.m. — The Pope gets dressed and into wheelchair.

1:00 p.m. — Assistant feeds the Pope soft foods.

1:30 p.m. — The Pope is wheeled into sunshine for nap.

"I'm sure ratings will go through the roof!" says Sloane.

You snooze, you lose – unless you're the Pope!

Captured space alien's startling claim . . .

WE'VE BEEN FATTENING UP AMERICANS WITH JUNK FOOD FOR YEARS

By DEKE STINSON

– & they're finally ripe for slaughter!

AS IF overweight Americans didn't have enough to worry about with people making fun of them all the time, a captured space alien has told the FBI that "tubbos we've fattened up with junk food are finally ripe for the slaughter."

And to make sure agents understood exactly what he was talking about, the almond-eyed bulb-head went on to say, "That's right, chief. We're going to eat them."

As wild as the creature's claims might sound, the FBI has reason to believe that he is telling the truth.

Sources say that when discovered in the kitchen of a fast-food restaurant in Birmingham, Alabama, that had closed for the night, the extraterrestrial was spraying already calorie-rich burgers, fries and fish sandwiches with a sticky brown mist that has since been identified as a super-concentrated extract of animal and human fats.

And while searching the alien's silver-foil fanny pack for sugar-like substance that according to a laboratory analysis, when consumed by humans, is almost instantly converted to flab.

Under intense questioning, the extraterrestrial reportedly boasted that "thousands of my comrades" have been lacing junk foods with the strange liquids "for 20 of your Earth years. Now we will reap the rewards in the harvest of your obese ones, who by anyone's reckoning, make for good eatin'."

"The threat is real," FBI chief Robert Mueller was warned in an alarming internal memo that was leaked to reporters in Washington, D.C., on Nov. 4.

"Their intention is to abduct, slaughter and eat overweight Americans, and not just a few here and there — we're talking about millions of them.

"An extraterrestrial invasion, herding process and mass abduction seem imminent, and the question is: Can we stop it?"

The FBI will neither confirm nor to have asked for "a full intelligence assessment of the threat" to national security before he decides just how to break the news to American citizens, 147 million of which are grossly overweight and would appear to be at risk.

"If somebody thinks he's going to wind up on a space alien's dinner table with an apple in his mouth he's going to do whatever it takes to keep that from happening, and that includes losing weight," fumes Meg Kennedy, co-founder of the San Francisco-based fat-pride group, Big Beautiful Women and Men of America.

"If extraterrestrials were targeting skinny people, I'll guarantee you there would be a national alert.

"It just goes to show that people of size always get the short end of the stick."

ARE YOU KIDDING?

Infants and very young children are at what the FBI calls "extreme risk" of being eaten by space aliens who, according to the captured extraterrestrial, "love baby back ribs."

COP GIVES HIMSELF A DUI TICKET

— then says 'I must have been drunk'

By JAKE ANDERSON

A LOUISIANA driver was given a ticket by a member of the Louisiana Highway Patrol for drunk driving. What makes the case remarkable is that the officer wrote the ticket to himself!

"I was out patrolling one night after I'd had a few," highway patrol officer Rodney Weaver says, "when suddenly I saw a car on the freeway swerving from side to side. I thought 'Wow. That guy's soused!' And then I realized " 'Hey! That's me!'

"I thought, 'I can't let me drive like that!' so I pulled myself over and asked, 'Do you know why I pulled you over?'

"I answered myself 'Why don't YOU tell ME?'

"I didn't like my attitude, so I wrote myself a ticket."

When he sobered up, Weaver says he couldn't believe what he'd done. "I must've been hammered," he says.

Ironically, Weaver is trying to get his DUI dismissed on the grounds that he was inebriated.

"I plan on telling the judge that the case should be thrown out because the officer who wrote the ticket was drunk and his judgment can't be trusted."

SKELETON OF REAL LIFE HOBBIT FOUND ON REMOTE ISLAND!

Experts confirm: Man-like critters may still exist!

SCIENTIST points at skull of Hobbit-sized humans found in limestone caves on the Indonesian island of Flores.

IN WHAT is being hailed as the most astonishing discovery in 100 years, scientists have unearthed skeletons of a new human species — hairy legged beings standing just 3 feet tall that researchers have nicknamed Hobbits!

The pint-size specimens found in a cave in the tropical wilderness of Indonesia's Flores Island look uncannily like the diminutive heroes in J.R.R. Tolkien's Lord of the Rings trilogy, scientists say.

Since the announcement of the mind-blowing find in the October 28 edition of Nature, evidence has emerged that the wee folk inhabited the island up to a few hundred years ago — and a handful may still survive.

"It is a fundamentally new creature that bears more of a resemblance to fictional, barefooted Hobbits than modern humans," AP reports.

The most complete skeleton belongs to an adult female who died around age 30. It's roughly 18,000 years old — but some of six others are a mere 13,000 years old. Scientists confirm that the species, officially dubbed Homo floresiensis, shared its caves with our ancestors — echoing Tolkien's description of a forgotten time when Hobbits coexisted with man.

Researchers now speculate that tales told worldwide of elusive little people such as leprechauns and elves — which inspired Tolkien's creations — were based on real encounters.

"This finding really does rewrite our knowledge of human evolution," declares an expert at the Natural History Museum in London.

STANDING only one meter tall, scientists speculate the Hobbits lived on the island until the 16th century.

sediment of a limestone cave.

"I went a bit pale and my jaw dropped to my knees," Brown reveals. "It's an absolutely bizarre find." Scientists say the hairy real-life Hobbits had thicker eyebrow ridges than regular humans and flatter noses, eerily mirroring Tolkien's description.

Although their brains were only the size of grapefruits, they were quite smart. Along with the skeletons were found sophisticated tools, including stone spearheads that had been used to hunt Komodo dragons brainy Hobbits colonized the remote island by boat.

The team theorizes that Homo floresiensis was wiped out by a volcanic explosion about 12,000 years ago. But the scientists admit they're intrigued by folktales related by local islanders of tiny forest folk whose description precisely matches the real-life Hobbits.

Researcher Caty Husbands has spent more than a decade studying Flores.

"It was during my initial trip to the island that I first heard about 'small people who looked like monkeys' who used to live alongside the villagers' ancestors," Husbands writes in an article for Pacific News Service. "These creatures were referred to as the Ebu Gogo. I was told that Ebu Gogo lived outside the village as recently as several hundred years ago."

After a dispute with humans, the Hobbit-like creatures "fled to a cave in a cliff outside the village," the researcher writes.

WHY MEN WITH POT-BELLIES TURN WOMEN ON

By NIGEL FLEMING

HEY, MEN, if you're fat and out of shape, we have fantastic news for you – guys with potbellies turn women on.

For decades, men have been under the erroneous assumption that females crave buff men with rock-hard abs. This couldn't be further from the truth.

According to a new survey by the What Women Want Society, most ladies prefer a portly boyfriend with a protruding gut, because it suggests that the man could care less about superficial issues, such as health and personal hygiene, which affords him more time to lavish attention on his mate."

Wanda Wilson, an attractive 33-year-old legal assistant, puts it this way: "I've been with gorgeous guys, and all they talk about is their good looks and their boudoir expertise. Those men are too conceited for me. I prefer a real man with a spongy belly that hangs down over his size-45 belt."

Along with repulsive potbellies, the survey also shattered other misconceptions about what ladies desire in a man. Women actually adore macho jerks who wear lots of gold chains and cheap cologne. They also go for unclean louts who are obsessed with sports, who give

BUNS OF STEEL

Hard-bodied beauty can smash concrete blocks with her TUSH!

By MIKE FOSTER

TALK about amazing tails! Rachel Hortel's tight and toned tush is so powerful, she can use it to shatter concrete blocks with a single blow!

And that's just one of the dazzling tricks the aerobics-instructor-turned-nightclub-performer does with her rock-hard rump. She can also:

- Bend a two-inch-long steel bolt into a U by squeezing her cheeks together.
- Hang from a tightrope by her butt for up to 30 minutes.
- Flatten a ball bearing by clenching her super-developed gluteal muscles.

"I work out for three hours a day on the Stairmaster and do 1,000 butt clenches a day as part of my workout routine," reveals Rachel, 24. "It can get monotonous, but that's what it takes to pull off these stunts."

The buns of steel brunette performs at various venues in Las Vegas, where she wows audiences with her fanny-tastic feats.

"One surefire crowd pleaser Rachel regularly does in her act is invite a big, strapping guy to come out of the audience and give her a smack on her rear end as hard as he can," says manager Herb Geldbloom.

holding it in pain, screeching and in some cases even crying like a baby."

Rachel wasn't born with a titanium tush. At the inner-city Detroit high school she attended, she was mocked as "that flat-assed white girl."

"I was ashamed that I didn't have anything back there," she recalls. "I vowed to put myself on a fitness regimen to beef up my heinie — and that decision wound up changing my life."

Rachel's unbelievably shapely derriere gets her plenty of attention even when she's not on stage — ranging from admiring stares at the supermarket to elevator groping. But the plucky performer doesn't take unwanted touchy-feely behavior sitting down.

"One time I was playing pool with friends in a bar and as I leaned over to take a shot, some jerk goosed me," she says.

"I clenched — and the next second the guy was writhing on the floor with his thumb broken in 11 places."

The beauty has even used her unique asset to save lives.

Last summer she was jogging in the park when she saw a rottweiler slip its leash and try to bite a 2-year-old girl.

"Rachel raced over and slammed the animal in its head with her keister," Geldbloom says.

MILLIONAIRE USES DOLLAR BILLS FOR TOILET PAPER!

By SCOTT STEVENS

A TEXAS multimillionaire flushes his money down the toilet – literally! To flaunt his immense wealth, he uses dollar bills as toilet paper!

And Donald Bumsford, the 33-year-old oil tycoon tracks the quality of his bowel movements by how much moolah he had to flush down the drain when he was done.

"That's a four-dollar one," Bumsford says, pointing to four dollar bills floating in his toilet bowl. "Yesterday I had a big one that cost me 22 bucks."

Although some critics have told him it's obscene to wipe his butt with money when there are so many poor people, Bumsford doesn't see it that way."

"Everything I buy costs a minimum of a $100," he says. "Singles, fives, and tens are useless to me. So instead of throwing them out, I put them to good use."

Bumsford says he got the idea when he overheard a Brazilian friend make a comment about his country's currency.

"He said, 'That money's not worth the paper it's printed on.'

"I thought, 'Hey, I'll use my money AS paper.'

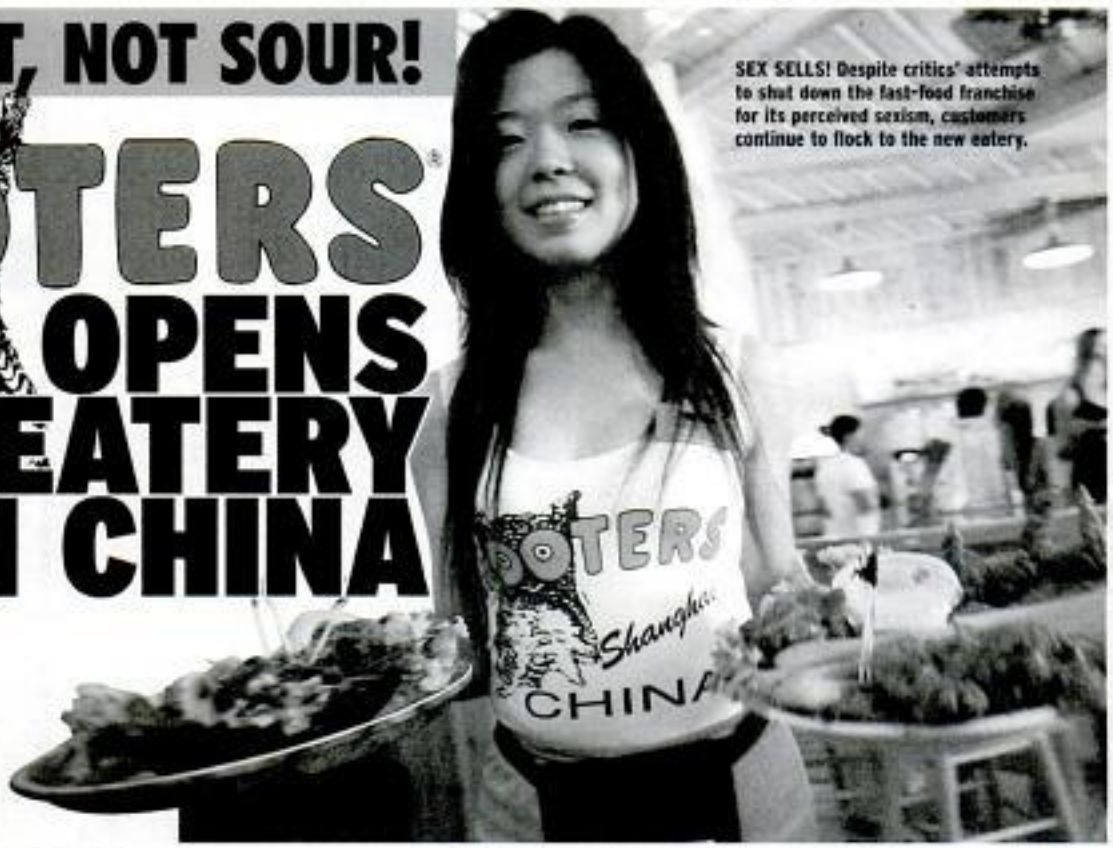
HOOTERS® OPENS EATERY IN CHINA



SEX SELLS! Despite critics' attempts to shut down the fast-food franchise for its perceived sexism, customers continue to flock to the new eatery.

By TAYLOR BRIDGES

THE BEER, boob and chicken wing craze has officially made it all the way around the world — Hooters just opened up in China!

The America-based business brought its self-described "delightfully tacky, yet unrefined" restaurant to the other side of the globe and into one of the world's fastest growing economies.

"The people of Shanghai deserve something fun with good service and we're happy to bring it to them," says general manager Cameron Jiang.

Good service may be one of Hooter's trademarks, but for many customers, it's not exactly the first thing that comes to mind.

The chain is famous for it's busty waitresses poured into revealing, low-cut tank tops and tiny high-cut shorts.

It's an image that wouldn't always have been accepted in China's traditional male-dominated culture with conservative views. Showing skin and public displays of affection were at one time forbidden, but apparently times are changing.

"You see young women on the street wearing skimpy outfits on hot days. I don't think anything could be wrong (with Hooters), as long as customers and waitresses have the right intentions," says one customer who works for a pharmaceutical company.

Her views are echoed through the city. These days, Shanghai is home to hundreds of hostess bars, massage parlors, telephone chat lines and sex shops. The public is increasingly accepting of premarital sex and couples hug and kiss openly.

Critics have tried to derail the company for it's perceived sexism, but have so far been unsuccessful. While the chain maintains that attitude is more important than appearance, most customers admit it's more than just attitude that keeps them coming back.

The waitresses are mainly college students or recent grads and don't seem to mind the attention.

"The uniform is no problem, it's very beautiful and there are chances of moving into management," says Lily Shang. "It's really a happy place and I love this job."

The new Hooters is located in the touristy Hongquio district, and there are plans for eight more in other cities throughout China. Hooters already has more than 375 outlets in over a ness seems to be booming, Chinese diners are notoriously choosy and there are already several American food chains to choose from — Hard Rock Cafe, Chili's and TGI Friday's have thus far established a presence.

The director of the Shanghai Culinary Association, Xue Yuanqing, says, "The market share is only so big for American food, and chains like KFC and McDonald's won't easily give way to Hooters."

"I don't know much about this restaurant," he adds, "but generally, American food in not known for any particular virtues."

HOOTERS HOSTESSES shake their assets to the Hokey-Pokey while entertaining guests at Shanghai's newest restaurant.

PHONY PILOT COULD BE IN CONTROL OF NEXT PLANE YOU BOARD!

By BECKY TODD

BEWARE! Phony pilots are popping up at airports all over the country, reveals an FAA source.

"God help the passengers if one of these fake jet jockeys gets command of their aircraft," says the insider. "The deranged bastards have absolutely no idea what they're doing. Even if by some miracle they could actually get the plane in the air they'd crash and burn within seconds, taking hundreds of innocent people with them."

The counterfeit sky captains suffer from a mental disease psychiatrists call "Pretender Syndrome."

"The patient is out of touch with reality and believes he is actually a pilot or a surgeon or an astronaut or whatever," says Dr. Sidney Lutz, a New York psychotherapist who specializes in treating the illness. "A Pretender is dangerous to himself and those around him, especially if he performs brain surgery or something of that nature."

The FAA insider advises plane passengers to carefully check their pilot's credentials with the airline or airport authorities.

"If something seems fishy, DON'T board the jet," adds the source. "The best course of action

MOLE MEN COULD BE LIVING UNDER YOUR LAWN

They are approximately 2 feet tall, walk on 2 legs and worship humans!

By NICK JEFFREYS

SCIENTISTS have uncovered one of the most amazing discoveries of all time — a race of Mole People living beneath the Earth's surface.

According to noted biologist Dr. Alfred Dunner, who is preparing a presentation of his findings for the American Medical Association, the subterranean beings are approximately 2 feet tall, covered with velvety dark fur and walk on two legs.

arms, the creatures possess shovel-like front feet they use to dig long tunnels.

The new species — which Dunner has dubbed Homole Sapien — dines on insects, earthworms, grubs and an occasional Happy Meal stomped into the ground by a spoiled child.

"The Mole People are terrified of human beings," reveals Dunner. "Their movements through a complicated series of burrows and dens are completely silent. They could carry on their lives beneath your front lawn and you would never know it."

"They're hideously ugly and destroy plants and flowers," says Dunner, "but they don't deserve to be poisoned, gassed, decapitated, stabbed, bludgeoned with shovels or stomped to death by gardeners and homeowners."

The scientist and his research team were 10 feet beneath the orchid exhibit at Brooklyn's Botanical Gardens when they made the groundbreaking discovery.

"We were working with our latest humane extermination device, the Mole Motel 6," says Dunner. "I turned to my colleague, but instead found myself looking into the beady little eyes of a Mole Person! I screamed and fainted."

Members of the underground society hate surface dwellers, but knew Dunner was different.

"Two of them carried me into their den, which was tastefully paneled in woody pine and photo of myself. This didn't surprise me. It's only natural they worship me as the god I am."

Dr. I.B. Green, a geologist on Dunner's team, watched his boss disappear on the shoulders of the creatures.

"I ran after them as they took Dr. Dunner to their den," says Green, "It had a nice stone fireplace, but no photos of me, even though I helped develop Mole Motel 6."

Since Homole Sapiens have no ears, they speak through sign language, which the scientists caught on to quickly.

"We learned they were really great grandchildren from interspecies marriages between garden moles and people who had been buried alive.

"In the olden days, approximately 6,000 individuals each year suffered accidental funerals. With no high-tech medical equipment, many doctors mistook comas for death.

"When the 'dead' person woke up, they screamed and clawed at the casket. Compassionate moles dug in and freed them. The two groups hit it off, dated and wed."

Dunner is now working to raise money for a return trip to

First there was Road Rage, now...

MOVIE RAGE!

By AIDEN LOUIS

A BLOODY new phenomenon called Movie Rage is sweeping the nation, leaving hundreds of inconsiderate morons injured and even dead, says a shocking survey.

According to a poll of the nation's emergency rooms, more and more patients are going to the theater to see the latest flick and departing in an ambulance.

"Movie Rage makes Road Rage look like child's play," says Dr. Jorge Gonzalez, an ER physician at Our Lady Of Angels In The Outfield in San Diego, Calif.

"Last Saturday night I patched up a woman who was viciously stabbed with a nail file. She kept answering her cell phone during Shrek 2. The lady sitting next to her went berserk.

"Frankly, I think she deserved it. I hate it when I go to the movies and some jerk yaks away like he's in his own living room."

The survey showed the behaviors most likely to result in assault with a deadly weapon are: Talking, crunching popcorn, repeatedly sucking the last two dribbles of soda from a straw, answering a cell phone, rattling a plastic bag of candy, tipping boxes of Raisinettes or Sno Caps so the contents slide back and forth

He's the World's Biggest Eater

— AND HE ONLY WEIGHS 125 LBS

By NIKKI HEAD

HUNGRY Peter Myers packs away more food in a day than most people eat in a week, but the man with the hummingbird metabolism still weighs only 125 pounds — dripping wet!

That's the same the stick-thin 48-year-old weighed at age 14, even though he spends just about every waking moment pigging out on all the high-calorie, high-fat, high-carb foods that normal men and women are warned to steer clear of if they don't want to turn into blimps.

A typical breakfast spread includes a thick slab of his favorite German chocolate cake, a couple of oatmeal raisin cookies, a pastry or two, jelly donuts, blueberry muffins or banana bread, a carton of chocolate ice cream, fresh fruit, milk, cereal, leftover pizza, bacon and eggs, buttered toast, smoky link sausages, piping hot hash browns and soda pop and orange juice to wash it all down.

Lunch is more substantial and a lot meatier, usually consisting of traditional, stick-to-your-ribs selections like mouth-watering chops and steaks, more crisp, pan-fried bacon, a thick juicy hamburger or two, clam chowder, oyster stew or some other hearty soup, mountains of golden french fries, more white bread that he enjoys both plain and toasted as well as buttered and slathered with jam, and all the sweet tea he can pour down his throat.

But dinner, as he puts it, "is like a buffet," says the string bean who attributes his ability to eat without gaining weight to "a world-class thyroid" that burns calories like a blast furnace.

"Most of the time I'll pick up a 21-piece bucket of fried chicken," he continues, "or a 10- to 12-pound smoked ham or maybe a fresh-baked turkey from my supermarket's deli on my way home from work.

"I love baked beans and mashed taters and gravy, too, so I pick up a couple of quarts of those to go along with the meat. It sounds like a lot to some people, but I always clean my plate.

"And I'll keep snacking through the night. Ice cream, cake, popcorn, candy bars, peanuts, potato chips, corn chips. I'm not really all that particular. I just go for whatever I'm in the mood for.

"It's kind of a mixed blessing, though.

"On the one hand, I get to eat whatever I want, and never gain an ounce. On the other hand, my food bills are outrageous."

In fact, Myers' parents went bankrupt trying to feed him during his teenage years, forcing him to quit school at age 17 and join the Army.

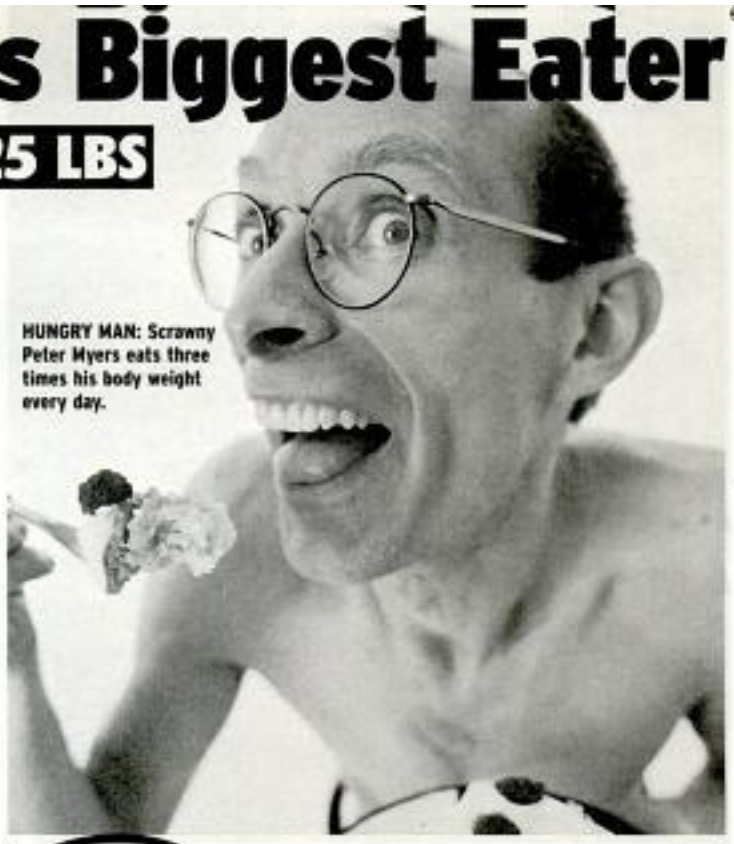
But he didn't last long there, either. After just eight months, he was given an early out and honorable discharge simply because, as one of his officers put it, "Son, the Pentagon says you're eating the military out of house and home."

Back in Georgia, his fortunes changed — and he landed a job tasting pies for a large regional bakery.

"It's a dream come true for me," says Myers. "Not only do I

ARE YOU KIDDING?

String bean Peter Myers consumes about 15,000 calories a day — seven times more than a normal man would eat. His weekly food bill? A whopping $475!



HUNGRY MAN: Scrawny Peter Myers eats three times his body weight every day.

THE SABAK SISTERS

AMERICA'S SEXIEST PSYCHICS

SULTRY SONYA

SIZZLING SERENA

Should I sell my soul to the Devil for a better life?

Dear Sonya: I've worked my fingers to the bone on the cash register at the mini-mart and for what? Nothing! I live in a two-bit trailer behind my mother's ramshackle farm house. I can't pay my bills. I can't get my refrigerator fixed. I can't even afford a decent pair of panties at the discount house because I don't have a dollar to spare.

But a friend of mine says I could start living like a queen if I would just sell my soul to Satan like she did. It's true that she used to be even worse off than me until she started hanging out with the Devil worshippers here in town.

Now she's got a great new job. She also inherited money and a big house from an uncle she didn't even know she had.

I'm at my wit's end, Sonya, and I'm just about ready to start running with the Devil. Should I? — Rita in LaCrosse, Fla.

Dear Rita: If you think your life is a nightmare now, chickster, just wait until you make a pact with Satan. He might very well pay your bills and put you in a fancy new home, but the price you pay will be nothing less than eternal damnation.

As an alternative, I'm casting a spell that will give you the "get up and go" you need to get your butt down to the community college and take those nursing classes you've been yakking about for years now.

Before you know it, you'll be rolling in dough, especially if marry that hunky proctologist who's going to hire you when you graduate from nursing school!

PERSONAL TO:

Jenny in Syracuse, N.Y.: You'll find your wedding ring inside that wadded-up pair of panties you left under the seat of your boyfriend's pickup truck

Animal Lover in Tucson, Ariz.: I know you want to help the dog, dear, but don't be a fool. That's no mere stray hanging around your mother's grave. It's a hound from Hell – and evil to the bone!

Baffled Wife in Detroit, Mich.: Your husband is "suddenly" buying you lots of frilly new dresses because he's discovered that HE likes to wear them when you're not at home. I probably shouldn't tell you this, but what the heck? Look in the shoebox under his nightstand and you'll find his fishnet stockings, silk panties – and a heavily padded bra.

Terrified in Birmingham, Ala.: Stop dabbling in black magic and the Devil will leave you alone. Keep it up, young lady, and you'll die very, very young!

How can I get a raise out of my cheapskate boss?

Dear Serena: How can I persuade my skinflint boss to give me a raise?

He's a great guy and all, but I can't make ends meet on the pittance he pays me. — Poor Girl in Jackson, Miss.

Dear Poor Girl: You'll never persuade the boss to give you a raise — but why bother? Peering into my crystal ball, I see him dying peacefully in his sleep early next month. And believe it or not, you're in his will to the tune of $600,000. Spend the money wisely, my child. And please do give some to charity!

Can you make me a winner?

Dear Sonya: I know people who've won cars, houses, vacations — you name it. But me? Nothing. Zilch. Zero. I'm not being greedy, but if I could just win a little something I'd feel better. Can you help? — Big Loser in Reno, Nev.

Dear Big Loser: My Ouija's rattling around in her box like a jumping bean in a frying pan, dude, so I'll let her field your question. She says: "Tell . . . loser. . . buy . . . lotto . . . scratch . . . ticket . . . on . . . Thursday . . . no . . . Friday . . . to . . . win . . . $10." And because I like you, I'll go Ouija one better. Bet the entire "wad" on the Redskins game next week and you'll parlay that $10 into $100!

Let Serena and Sonya help you! Write: Sabaks, Weekly World News, P.O. Box 3036, Boca Raton, Fla. 33431-0936. We'll forward your letters to them. Don't send money. Their advice is free. Please note: Due to the huge volume of mail Sonya and Serena receive, they cannot respond personally to letters or e-mails. Thanks for your understanding.

with new airline food diet

By HEATHER HERRERA

COFFEE, TEA OR MYSTERY MEAT? Airline food is sure to make you just as slim and sexy as your favorite stewardess.

FORGET Atkins and South Beach, there's a new diet in town — the Airline Food Diet!

Doctors in Singapore have developed what they say is the "ultimate weight-loss system," that guarantees dieters will lose 10 to 15 pounds a week by following a strict nutritional guide.

"The plan is quite simple," says Dr. Khan Kin Yee. "If you only allow yourself trays of airline food, there's no chance of overeating since most of us would rather starve than eat the unsavory mush served on flights."

Airlines typically capitalize on the fact that taste buds are dulled at high pressure, cutting corners to make their meals characteristically bland.

"If you think the food is bad in the air, just imagine how bad it is on the ground when your sense of taste isn't weakened."

Kin Yee and his team of researchers tested the Airline Food Diet on a group of 25 pudgy people and recorded an average weight loss of 47 pounds a month.

"The chicken was rubber-duckie and there was nothing tender about the beef tenderloin," says one anonymous porker. "But with nothing on the plate to tempt my palate, I lost a ton of weight!"

Other former fatties are also flying high after slimming down with Kin Yee's plan.

Deanna Feldmen, 22 pounds lighter: "I'd be eating the meals and would find myself wondering if maybe the carton it came in might actually taste better than the food. I never went back for seconds!"

Jorge Entiroso, who went from 256 to 201 in five short weeks: "My favorite part of eating used to be dessert, but all that's on those trays is goopy pudding or a stale cookie. It's easy to skip the sweets if they stink!"

Kin Yee and his team expect the diet to take off smoothly once it's officially presented to the public.

"People are always looking for a new way to curb their appetites and this is a sure-fire way," he explains. "Plus, we've also proven that a person burns more calories playing around with the curious cuisine than what they actually take in.

"Our testers pushed the food around on their plates much the same way a child would separate the peas from his casserole or the onions from his burger. Subtract all the shifting and sifting through tired-looking salads and discolored lunch meat from the total calories consumed and you actually end up ahead!"

And those negative-calories were exactly what Kin Yee suspected could be achieved when he was first developing the diet.

"Just look at stewardesses. You never see a fat one — they're always thin and trim and gorgeous. I always suspected it had something to do with the airline food, and now we know their secret."

ANGRY PIANO TEACHER CUTS OFF STUDENT'S FINGERS

By FORREST FINLEY

A TICKED-OFF piano teacher whipped out a butcher knife and sliced off a student's pinkie because the brat kept hitting the wrong keys with it, say cops.

"I just couldn't take it anymore," Zelda Marone, 76, said in her statement to police in Atlanta, Ga.

"I kept telling her to practice more. I kept telling her to squeeze a rubber ball to strengthen all her fingers.

"But after two weeks of teaching and preaching she couldn't get through 'Chopsticks' without making mistakes.

Police declined to name the victim because she is a minor under the age of 10. They said the child is out of danger and will heal, but because doctors couldn't reattach her severed finger, she now has just four digits on her right hand.

Her mother blames the piano teacher for the girl's inability to learn.

"It was like she expected her to be a concert pianist after just two or three lessons," the woman told police.

Marone was charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit grievous bodily harm and jailed under a $25,000 bond.

HOW TO TELL IF HUBBY IS FAKING AN AFFAIR

1 in 5 cheaters are bogus, research shows

By MICHAEL FORSYTH

LADIES, have certain clues led you to suspect your husband is cheating on you? Don't be so sure. A surprising one in five "straying" hubbies is actually faking an affair just to get a quick divorce, experts say.

"These are typically men who've grown apart from their wives over the years, but hate confrontation," explains relationship guru Dr. Kathy Askerwitz of New York City.

"They don't want any arguments, any pleading from their partner to try to 'work things out' or months of marriage counseling — they just want out and know that being 'caught' cheating is an easy shortcut."

Here, from the expert, are 10 telltale signs that your man's affair is bogus:

1 LIPSTICK ON THE COLLAR. Tests have shown it's physically impossible for a big red kiss to get on a shirt collar by accident. "Apply some of your own lipstick to your husband's lips, order him to kiss a napkin and chances are you'll find the lip print is a perfect match," Dr. Askerwitz suggests.

2 THONG PANTIES IN YOUR BED. Are you supposed to believe the "other woman" forgot she wasn't wearing underwear when she snuck out of your home? "Not panties she paid $79 for at Victoria's Secret," says the expert.

3 REEKS OF CHEAP PERFUME. Search his junk drawer and you'll undoubtedly find the bottle of inexpensive fragrance he used to douse his clothes.

4 SCRATCHES ON BACK. If they look a bit "too perfect" to be real, they probably aren't.

5 NEW BEDROOM TRICKS. "Odds are that if you go on his computer, you'll discover he downloaded those 'daring' techniques from the Internet," Dr. Askerwitz says.

6 MAKES LOVE TO YOU LESS FREQUENTLY. Is he really seeing someone else — or does he have a secret stash of Playboy magazines?

7 HARASSING PHONE CALLS FROM "LOVE RIVAL." Tape a call and listen to the voice again closely. Isn't that his gay work buddy or favorite female cousin?

8 CONDOM IN WALLET. That's the oldest trick in the book — don't be bamboozled.

9 SUDDEN IMPROVEMENT IN HIS APPEARANCE. A few outings to the gym, "younger-looking" shirts and a haircut that costs more than $6 doesn't add up to an affair.

10 CONFESSION. As a last resort, if a wife misses all the carefully planted clues, some phony cheaters will resort to blurting out a confession. "If this is a guy who never fesses up to speeding, he's not going to own up to real adultery," Dr. Askerwitz points out.

ARE YOU KIDDING?

A surprising 10 percent of wives admit they've encouraged their husbands to commit adultery because they hate having sex with the guys, a survey in a women's magazine reveals.

HUSSY or highly trained actress? Walking in on a scene like this is no proof your husband's affair is real. Your "love rival" might be an actress hired for the occasion, expert warns.

Girl sues parents because she's ugly

By NIGEL FLEMING

BRANDY SUE Schimmel is sick of being repulsive. She's tired of all the "butt-face" jokes at school. That's why the precocious, fed up, unattractive 18-year-old Boston resident has decided to sue her parents.

Brandy Sue's parents, Milton and Celeste, are devastated by their daughter's drastic action. "We think Brandy Sue is beautiful," Mrs. Schimmel says between sobs. "That's why people pay good money to watch her and the bearded lady at our traveling carnival."

Niles Fleece, Brandy Sue's lawyer, claims be allowed to bear offspring. Mr. Schimmel's kisser would terrify the Devil himself."

Brandy Sue can't wait for the ordeal to be resolved. "I just want to be normal looking . . . you know, like J.Lo or Britney Spears," she says. "With the money my parents fork over, I'll be able to have plastic surgery, liposuction, a tummy tuck and maybe even a face transplant."

Ugly kids around the world are eagerly awaiting the outcome of the lawsuit. Brandy Sue is a hero to them, and she vows, "After I win this case, I'll sue my parents again —

YOUR TAROT FORTUNE:

Key to the card you picked on Page 54

1 The Chariot — ADVERSITY

Love: Use the power of your heart to shape your feelings into meaningful expressions. Emotions are not to be swept under the rug.

Money: Try to defy logic and reason this week and go against your normal instincts. Pry yourself away from complacency and burst into a purposeful investment.

Health: It is possible to train yourself to eat well and exercise regularly. People are creatures of habit, so once you get into a routine, you'll eas-

2 6 of Cups — MEMORIES

Love: Let good times from the past guide you in your current journey. Reflect on what you most enjoyed and do all that you can to replicate those happy times.

Money: You will receive a precious gift soon. Be sure to appreciate the beauty of the gesture – someone thought long and hard about what to give.

Health: Whatever trials lie ahead of you can be conquered with the same self-assurance you relied on in the past.

3 7 of Disks — REEVALUATION

Love: When all else fails, take a step back and look at what you've been working towards. The ultimate goal may not be so important anymore.

Money: Sometimes the choice has to be made between keeping what you have and trying to get more. Taking risks has its positives, but it can also land you in a hole if you're not careful.

Health: After a long period of hard work, take some time to rest. You don't have to feel like a day is wasted if you just

4 9 of Swords — MISERY

Love: If you could go back and change the past, you would. But, you can't. Move on and live your new life.

Money: If you worry and stress about money issues, you'll only bring on more problems. Just go with the flow and you'll be pleasantly surprised by the unexpected outcome.

Health: Regret, anxiety and unsureness can keep you up in bed for hours. Listen to soft music or nature sounds

5 2 of Wands — GENEROSITY

Love: Giving and receiving are the two important parts of a good relationship. A little more giving and your partner will be extremely bowled over.

Money: If you have the will to accomplish great things, you will. Just keep a strong mind and things will all work out in the end the way you'd like.

Health: You are always in control of your life, even if sometimes you seem to spin out of control. Take two deep

HOW CAN YOU GET HELP OVER THE PHONE OR BY MAIL?

Some people wonder how can someone who you never seen or know help you over the phone or by mail. The answer is simple.

Mrs. Carol, gifted psychic can help you with all your problems. By picking up the vibrations through your voice or by the sensitivity of your handwriting, the energy, positive or negative is given off in the way you speak and write.

Mrs. Carol can tap into your energy, capture a vision of you and guide you through the problems of life step by step. With her guidance she will help you to the life of love, success, inner peace, and financial freedom.

Four most common questions that people ask me:
Am I in the right relationship?
Will I have money in the future?
Will I marry and have a family?
Is there happiness in my future?

Call or write me for your questions.

CAPRICORN	10, 16, 22, 31, 36, 45

ARIES

Mar. 21 – Apr. 19

Continue delaying a thankless chore that you're dreading.

You've had a real struggle keeping things together in recent weeks but it's not your fault. You're about to climb the final mountain.

A long legal restriction will be lifted. Seek out a close friend of the opposite sex you enjoy being with and allow yourself to be embarrassingly candid.

TAURUS

Apr. 20 – May 20

Don't feel bad about unloading your worries. After all, after a few, you're the life of any party!

Load up the weekend with adventure. Your sensitivity to others' needs may leave you vulnerable to those envious of your ability to manipulate any situation.

Beware of friendly overtures from those who can't give you what you need.

GEMINI

May 21 – June 20

Pesky little problems and loose ends will have your blood pressure rocketing. Don't worry, it will all work out — or completely collapse.

Face the weekend with a smile on your lips and a glow in your belly.

Confidence holds you in good stead as you approach those in charge with a new idea. Remember, they called Einstein crazy!

CANCER

June 21 – July 22

The power of your positive thinking will be contagious and help you get unsuspected approval.

There's been some petty bickering among friends that may become a raging feud. Play both ends against the middle.

A trip to the mall proves to be lucky as you get an unexpected treat. Just be sure to wear clean blue socks!

LEO

July 23 – Aug. 22

Being helpful could backfire this week. Someone you try to aid may mistake your interest as a way to boost your stature at their expense.

To sidestep a clash, avoid the number 63.

Help by giving spontaneous suggestions based on whatever occurs to you at the moment. Clean your plate before someone else does.

VIRGO

Aug. 23 – Sept. 22

A special someone finds you especially attractive at this time. Make sure this person is as old as they claim to be.

Controversy and disputes could be everywhere this week so wade in and start swinging!

There's a real possibility of scoring a K.O. if you join the battle — and that's something you desperately need now.

LIBRA

Sept. 23 – Oct. 22

A split-second decision could bring new adventure into your life. But a phone call may offer a reason to pull the plug.

If life seems to have lost some of its pizzazz, you've no one to blame but yourself. This is the week to add flash to your wardrobe, subscribe to a magazine or rekindle a fantasy romance with a pop star!

SCORPIO

Oct. 23 – Nov. 21

Your smile — or your dentures — always seems to light up a room, so let 'er rip.

A wild story could spell trouble if you allow yourself to tell it. Your lucky numbers (19, 3, 44) could be especially important now.

You may encounter a blow to your self-esteem, but don't despair — it happens to most people at least once.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22 – Dec. 21

A random contact in the next few days may result in a major change in your life. Stay open to new experiences, however questionable.

You are the idol of a child and most of the love you shower on this youngster will not be wasted.

Your stars promise hot prospects this week as long as you don't park a large car in a small garage.

CAPRICORN

Dec. 22 – Jan. 19

Go slowly, think carefully and seize the chance to make money at any expense.

This is a good time to help loved ones with their problems — even if they don't want it.

Make the effort to contact family and friends and find out why they haven't contacted you. Before any meeting, scour the room for hidden agendas.

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20 – Feb. 18

Your luck is likely to improve dramatically this week and you'd be wise to take advantage of it by risking it all.

Your ability to make quick decisions could prove to be an important asset when a friend shows up unexpectedly and needs tea and sympathy. Just don't throw pearls before swine. They may choke on them and leave you with the bill.

PISCES

Feb. 19 – Mar. 20

An unusual opportunity may come your way this week and you should be ready to act fast. Get advice from strangers if necessary, but hurry or you might miss the boat.

Stubbornness could get in the way of a good time — however morally questionable. Watch for men in black-and-white uniforms. Those subpoenas aren't worth the paper they're written on.

POLAND OUTLAWS BEANS DUE TO FARTING EPIDEMIC!

By MARK MILLER

EFFECTIVE immediately, Poland has outlawed the growing, sale and consumption of all beans due to a critical, nationwide gas problem – specifically, a farting epidemic!

"The bean ban happened just in time," explains Teodozjusz Waclawa, 61, Poland's National Director of Air Quality. "So many Poles were farting nonstop that the air was virtually unbreathable."

The toxic condition has been traced to contaminated water that fertilized the beans. Because people have differing sensitivities to farting aromas, there was a variety of reactions. Some fainted, some threw up, some developed migraine headaches, and seven Poles slipped into comas and later died.

"You have no idea how nauseating it was with everyone farting constantly all day long," recalls librarian Malgorzata Prakseda, 27. "Not to mention the disgusting sounds. Could Hell be any worse?"

Nonetheless, a Polish playwright is already at work on a musical comedy about the situation. It's called "Farter On The Roof," and features the songs, "I Could Have Stunk All Night," "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Farts," "If I Were a Fragrant Man," and "Can You Smell the Love Tonight?"

Unfortunately, Polish tourism is way down as a result of the farting epidemic, but once the epidemic is MOST guys have a secret weapon hidden in their toolboxes. It's a fix-all that woman don't understand, but never underestimate. It's potential is limitless, and it's uses inumerable. It's God's gift to the handyman, and it's known as duct tape.

Tim Nyberg and Jim Berg call themselves "The Duct Tape Guys." The brothers-in-law have written six books with titles like "The Ultimate Duct Tape Book," "Duct Shui," and "The Jumbo Duct Tape Book," and have dedicated their lives to "The Ultimate Power Tool."

"There are basically two rules in life," Tim says. "If it's stuck and it's not supposed to be, use WD-40. If it's not stuck and it's supposed to be, use duct tape."

Their Web site, www.theducttapeguys.com, a tribute to the glory of duct tape, proves this simple theory. Only after surfing through section after section of phenomenal feats can one truly appreciate where Jim and Tim are coming from. Here are just a few examples of how duct tape can simplify — or even save — your life:

● WOMEN duct tape the toilet seat down. Men duct tape it up.

● Who needs Post-It notes? Duct tape + any paper = self-stick note.

● Energy saver: duct tape your light switches in the "off" position.

● Duct tape a box shut for instant luggage.

● Lower your receding hairline: Attach duct tape from your forehead to chin. When you open your mouth, your

MAN IS BUILDING AN ACTUAL STAIRWAY TO HEAVEN!

By MATT KIRSCH

A TEXAS man who found God after listening to a Led Zeppelin song decided to build a real stairway to Heaven.

Larry Czach, 36, remembers his rock and roll conversion: "I was listening to Zeppelin one night and that song 'Stairway to Heaven' came on, and I thought to myself, 'Dude, I should try to build a stairway to Heaven,' and right then, I realized that I was smoking way too much weed, and I needed to find Jesus."

After sobering up, repenting, and becoming born again, Czach started working on his wooden stairway. But he soon realized it was going to be harder than he had imagined.

"I had no idea how to build anything. I never took a wood shop class in high school – I didn't have to, my parents were rich."

As we go to press, Czach had almost five feet of his staircase built.

"Man, I don't know how that Noah guy managed to build that ark – I think that story might be a little bit exaggerated. I mean, I've got like five friends helping me, and it's taken me three

KINDERGARTEN GIRL SUES CLASSMATE FOR SEXUAL HARASSMENT!

By MARK MILLER

A 5-YEAR-OLD kindergarten girl is suing her male classmates — for sexual harassment!

Kimberly Corcoran (a pseudonym) a student at Dan Quayle Kindergarten, just outside Rochester, N.Y., has, through her parents' law firm of Lewis, Buzzel and Kinsey, filed suit against Peter Sanders (a pseudonym), 5, for sexual harassment, shock, humiliation, embarrassment, mental injury, mental anguish, and emotional distress.

"It was awful," remembers Corcoran. "It started during finger-painting, when he showed me this dog he painted with a great big wee-wee. Gross.

Then, during lunch, he took his hot dog out of the bun and asked me if I wanted to touch his wiener. Double-gross. And during naptime, he pretended to be asleep while he rolled on top of me and started kissing me. Yech!!"

Corcoran's attorney, Andrew Buzzel, is confident of a victory. "Once the decision is made in our favor, Sanders will be immediately transferred to a juvenile detention facility where he will no longer be able to impose his filth on innocent girls."

BATTLE-AX: Only known photograph of Hameeda Bin Laden – who's said to be coyote ugly under her burqa.

OSAMA IS A HENPECKED HUBBY!

I told you to get your bony, camel ass home, or else!

Terror honcho's newest bride is a bossy battle-ax, Al Qaeda insiders claim

By MICHAEL FORSYTH

MASTER of disaster Osama Bin Laden may lead the world's most feared terrorist organization — but at home, he's a henpecked hubby who doesn't make a move without his bossy wife's approval!

That's the surprising revelation of Al Qaeda insiders, who grumble that Bin Laden's new bride Hameeda is such a battle-ax, she's wreaking havoc in the outfit.

"Hameeda verbally abuses Osama in front of the men — calling him 'lazy' and refusing to let him leave the tent until he's done all his chores," reveals a high-ranking Al Qaeda operative.

"While Osama's other two wives are content to remain home like good Moslem women, Hameeda insists on traveling with Osama — and even having a say in our day-to-day operations.

"A lieutenant will start laying out a plan and she'll rudely interrupt him. And if Hameeda says the idea 'stinks,' Osama will meekly agree. That she-devil is turning our leader into a whipped dog."

CIA terrorist hunters believe Hameeda's father is chief of a village on the Afghanistan-Pakistan border where the secret wedding took place in July.

"From all accounts, she's incredibly pushy — a cross between Hillary Clinton and henchmen call her, The Witch."

Harpy-like Hameeda has reportedly insisted on numerous changes in Osama's lifestyle, including:

● NO MORE WASTING FAMILY FORTUNE ON JIHAD — Hameeda demanded that Osama stop dipping into his $300 million inheritance to fund Al Qaeda.

"She told him, 'There are plenty of wealthy Saudis who will donate to the cause — I'm not going to end up a pauper,' " the Al Qaeda source reveals.

● NO MORE PERVERTED SEX — Osama's other wives looked the other way while the notoriously perverse terror whiz indulged in clandestine sex with everything from Bedouin boys to goats — and, as Weekly World News reported, even a bizarre romance with Saddam Hussein that culminated in a gay 'marriage.'

"Hameeda warned Osama that if he strays, he'll get the Lorena Bobbitt treatment," reveals Rampsey.

● NO MYSTERIOUS ABSENCES — Disappearing into the mountains for prolonged periods with vague explanations is out. "Hameeda wants to know exactly where Osama is and with whom at all times," the Al Qaeda source says.

Why does the tough-as-nails terrorist put up with his overbearing mate?

"It's said Hameeda helped him to mend his broken heart after Saddam's capture," explains Rampsey. "He's emotionally dependent on her.

"The village chief told Osama his daughter was a quiet, traditional Muslim girl — a lie he concocted to get the shrew off his hands.

"He also told Osama she was a ravishing beauty under her veil, while in fact her face would stop a clock, as Osama learned on their wedding night.

"On the plus side, rumor has it

RANGE

OH GIVE me a home where the buffalo roam . . . and eat breakfast? And watch TV? And cuddle up in front of the fireplace? No problem.

When Bailey D. Buffalo was just a calf, he was abandoned by his mother and adopted by Jim and Linda Sautner. They bottle-fed him at their buffalo ranch in Spruce Grove, Canada, and he became part of the family. Now, four years and 1,600 pounds later, the brown, woolly beast still hangs around the house — and is even welcome at the table for Christmas dinner!

Bailey's temperament is pretty mellow for a buffalo, but Jim jokes that he has a secret trick to calm him down: "Every time he gets upset, or gets me upset . . . I just whisper in his ear . . . 'buffalo burgers.' "

BAILEY loves to watch TV. His favorite show? The Nature of Things.

To the Sautners, Bailey's just a big pet with a big heart.

PLOT TO KIDNAP MACY'S SANTA CLAUS FOILED!

By MARK MILLER

A GANG of seven criminals have been captured and arrested for plotting to kidnap the famed Macy's Santa Claus and hold him for ransom!

Referred to by the New York City Police Department as the Santa Seven, the five men had planned their dastardly deed for a full year before an informant tipped off cops. Interrogation revealed that the plan was to kidnap Santa immediately before the nationally televised Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade was to get underway, thereby leaving no time to arrange for a replacement.

A $3 million ransom would then be demanded, and if the money was not delivered within one hour, Santa would be killed and lowered onto one of the parade floats.

The Santa Seven had previously successfully kidnapped the Energizer Bunny, the Marlboro Man, Ronald McDonald, Tony the Tiger, the Michelin Man and Aunt Jemima. The seven are currently in jail awaiting trial.

As a result of the kidnapping attempt, according to a privately hired security consultant, "This year's Macy's Santa will be wearing bulletproof clothing, carrying pepper spray and a hunting knife and will be surrounded by bodyguards. And anyone who comes within fifty yards of Santa will be subject to a thorough body cavity search."

STRIP SEARCH: Children who want to sit in Santa's lap must submit to a thorough body cavity search.

City councilman argues born-again Christians need new birth certificates

By DAVID TOLSEY

DO YOU accept Jesus Christ as your personal savior? Well, if you do in Okanogan County, Wash., you may be praying . . . and paying down at Town Hall. That's if Councilman Ronald Weinke has anything to say about it. Weinke is spearheading a bill that would require all Born-Again Christians to get new birth certificates.

"Don't make me out to be some sort of villain," says Weinke. "My proposal includes the creation of an express line at our Vital Records department where these Born-Agains can get their birth certificates processed and we need to properly account for them."

Opponents of Weinke argue that his proposal is just an attempt to generate additional revenues. Says longtime resident Chloe Rudolph, "Councilman Weinke can justify this anyway he likes, but the bottom line is he's exploiting the Christian faith for political and financial gain. He's the one who really needs to be saved."

But other residents took a more reasoned approach. "The Lord works in mysterious ways," says resident Theodore "Doc" Wilson. "Maybe all those Born-Agains waiting in line can convert those shady
